F.D.R. MESSAGE AWAITED AS CUE TO AIMS IN WAR

Deference to Russia Piques Interest.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—With the allied powers at odds on political and some military questions, President Roosevelt is completing a message to the new congress—the 79th—that may be one of the most momentous pronouncements of the war. The new congress will meet Wednesday noon and the Presidential message probably will be received Thursday.

Realizing that Germany, tho having just inflicted on the American army the greatest defeat in its history, is relying on allied dissension to escape total defeat, not only the United States but the whole world is waiting tensely for the Roosevelt message.

Urged to Define Aims.

Mr. Roosevelt has been adjured by both his supporters and his critics to define the war and peace objectives for which millions of Americans are fighting and dying and to proclaim the principles of democratic resistance to totalitarian aggression in terms that will unite the allied powers in new determination for victory. By the extent to which the President fulfills these hopes, if he essays to do so, his message will be judged.

The Constitution directs the President to submit to congress annually a report on the "state of the union." It is this report that he is now completing.

Altho his public utterances are chiefly the products of Sam Rosenman, Robert E. Sherwood, and other ghost writers, Mr. Roosevelt is expected to write important portions of this message himself. A Phi Beta Kappa scholar [honorary], he announced with some pride recently that he had found a new word: "Contentious." The message will be scanned for this word as proof positive of his authorship.

Democrats Are Divided.

The President addressed the 78th congress in an annual message as a body that would participate in the waging of the war and possibly the making of the peace. With peace not yet in sight, Mr. Roosevelt can hold out no greater expectation to the 79th.

The new congress will be Democratic by substantial majorities in both houses, but the Democrats will be divided between conservatives and the left wing New Dealers. As a result there will be a coalition majority of Republicans and conservative Democrats in both houses on domestic economic questions.

The message will be scanned for evidence indicating to what extent the President may be expected to "clear everything with Sidney" Hillman, head of the Communist and other left wing forces that are credited with compassing his reelection to a fourth term.

Administration Under Fire.

But even more vital concerns will sharpen public interest in the message. Events at home and abroad have produced a crisis in the state of the union on which the President is required to report. Scarcely ever

2 Nazi Agents Landed by Sub Seized by FBI

New York, Jan. 1 [Special].—The capture of two trained Nazi saboteurs recently landed on the Maine coast by a German U-boat was disclosed today by the federal bureau of investigation.

The men, seized in the New York area, had been equipped with $60,000 in United States currency, a loaded revolver for each, forged birth and draft certificates, secret inks, and other materials.

It was the second disclosure of the war that German agents have been landed on American shores from submarines. Eight Nazi saboteurs reached the Florida coast June 13, 1942, but were soon captured. Six of them, including a youthful former Chicagoan, were executed and the others given long prison terms.

Visit N. Y. Night Clubs.

Indications were that the newly arrived pair had not yet effected any sabotage. Since landing on American soil on Nov. 29 they were said to have been making a round of New York City's night clubs and bars in an effort to get information which they planned to transmit to Germany by short wave radio. When seized they had $56,574 left of the $60,000 provided them by the German government.

One of the men is an American citizen who had served briefly in this country's navy early in the war. He is William Curtis Colepaugh, alias William C. Caldwell, 26, who was born in Niantic, Conn. He was graduated from Admiral Farragut academy, a private school at Toms River, N. J., and attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology for three years.

His companion is Erich Gimpel, alias Edward George Green, 35, a native of Germany, who was a radio engineer in South America for seven years before being recruited for Nazi espionage and saboteur service. He was reported to be an explosives expert, particularly in blasting trains.

Waited Week Off Coast.

The U-boat that brought them from Germany was said to have lain off the Maine coast for a week waiting a favorable opportunity to land them. Finally a rubber boat carried them ashore near the little village of Hancock Point at Frenchman's Bay, Me., a month ago.

With the aid of a compass the pair walked 35 miles to Bangor, Me., took a train to Boston, stayed there a while, then came to New York. FBI Head J. Edgar Hoover said they were captured "in the last several days."

Both men were reported to have made full and complete statements to FBI agents, detailing their activities. Hoover said they were trained in schools in Berlin, Dresden, and The Hague, Netherlands, in the use of high explosives, in photography, and radio operation.

The men boasted, Hoover said, that they were graduates of the same school which trained the agents who rescued Benito Mussolini from captivity in 1943.

Discharged Under Suspicion.

Colepaugh readily told of his previous history. After leaving M. I. T. he became a seaman on ships plying between this country and Europe and South America. On July 22, 1942, he was arrested by FBI agents in the Philadelphia area for not having kept his Boston draft board informed of his whereabouts. He was allowed to enter the navy and was inducted the following Oct. 2 and sent to Great Lakes, Ill.

On Jan. 29, 1943, he was granted an honorable discharge. Hoover said the discharge read it was issued "for the convenience of the government," but actually it was issued because of suspicions that Colepaugh held pro-German sympathies.

A year later, on Jan. 12, Colepaugh sailed for Europe as a messboy in the crew of the diplomatic exchange liner Gripsholm. When the ship reached Lisbon he contacted the German consul there and soon returned to Germany.

Gimpel, who had been with the German Radio corporation—Telefunken—in South America for seven years, was taken into custody by Peruvian authorities in 1942. He was sent to this country and held at an interment camp in Texas until July, 1942, when he was repatriated to Germany.

ONE IN EVERY TWENTY PERSONS IN NATION ON GOVERNMENT PAY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1 (AP).—Nearly one person in 20 is on a governmental pay roll in this country. There are 155,116 separate, active governmental units in the United States, the census bureau reported today, with 6,503,000 civilian employes as of Oct. 1. The total includes 1,306,000 teachers and other school employes.

Half of the total, or 3,335,000 are on the federal pay roll.

The governmental units are divided as follows: federal government, 48 states, 3,050 counties, 18,919 townships or towns, 16,220 municipalities, 108,579 school districts, and 8,299 special districts.

DOCK MEN QUIT LOADING ARMY VESSELS IN RAIN

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 1 [Special].—Stevedores at the Philadelphia port of embarkation today refused to load army vessels in the rain, causing a postponement in the sailing time of several vessels, Col. Alexander B. MacNabb, port commandant, disclosed.

The stevedores, many of whom just had returned from holiday vacations, began drifting from their jobs around noon during a heavy shower, port authorities said. As the rain continued, they began to leave in such numbers that appeals were made to their patriotism.

Byrnes Urges Draft of 4-F's to Force Them Into War Jobs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—War Mobilization Director Byrnes today recommended legislation to draft all 4-F's for work in war plants or limited military service. He predicted further increases in draft calls and said the standards governing the deferment of agricultural workers must be reconsidered.

At a press conference he decried the fact that there are 4 million 4-F's in the country—many of them "reluctant" to take war jobs. He charged that congress has done nothing about it in the face of serious man power shortages which are hampering critical war production. Congress should consider legislation that would permit the induction of all 4-F's who have been rejected for regular army service for physical reasons, he asserted.

Under such a law, Byrnes said, the 4-F's would be assigned to war plants wherever needed or given limited military duties.

Makes First Report.

The press conference at which Byrnes made his draft proposal public was held in connection with his first report on war mobilization and reconversion, which he filed with the President and congress.

"I am convinced that consideration should be given by congress to some control over those found physically disqualified for military service so that they may render their war service in essential war activities," Byrnes wrote in a letter accompanying the report.

"We must man our war plants to the fullest extent necessary to meet the requirements of our military leaders," he continued. "We must do this in the face of a further withdrawal from our available man power supply to provide replacements for the army and to build the navy up to the strength which it requires to man its ships."

Predicts Bigger Draft Calls.

Asked if he believed this will mean additional draft call increases, Byrnes replied, "Yes, I do."

Reporting that there is no longer "ready man power" to draw upon for military replacements and war production, Byrnes said we must recognize the necessity of reconsidering the standards governing the deferment of agricultural workers, since this group represents the largest remaining source of young men for military service."

Summarizing agriculture's achievement in 1944, Byrnes said farmers had made a fourth of their output available to the military forces and allies. Yet they were able, he said, to provide civilians with 7 per cent more food than for the 1935-39 average.

The recent tightening of selective service regulations already has succeeded in holding workers in critical war plants, Byrnes said in his report. Restrictions on civilian production, more drastic labor ceilings, especially in less essential industries, and a ban on horse racing have been ordered, he continued, but even these measures may not be sufficient to meet the need for more workers.

Byrnes said he would like to see congress enact a national service law, but that he is "practical enough" to know that such legislation would be exceedingly controversial and could not be put into effect in time to meet present war demands. He asserted that he has been in favor of national service since Pearl Harbor, but is resigned to attempting to solve man power problems with existing laws and regulations.

Asks Teeth for WLB.

Byrnes promised he will use these laws and regulations to the "fullest extent" to place workers in essential industries. If present powers prove inadequate, he said, it is up to congress to enact new legislation to accomplish the necessary objectives.

The mobilization director recommended in his report the strengthening of the war labor board's authority to enable it to enforce its decisions in the courts without resorting to government seizure. He termed government seizure of properties an "inept procedure."

Referring to the AFL musicians' union and the Montgomery Ward & Co. cases of noncompliance with WLB orders, Byrnes asserted he believed congress can draft a law "to treat Petrillos and Averys alike."

Byrnes also disclosed that he is working on a plan to consolidate the dozen federal agencies dealing with man power.

11,900,000 Fighters

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1 (AP).—This country's fighting forces have increased to 11,900,000 since 1940, War Mobilization Director Byrnes disclosed today. Of that number, 8,100,000 were in the army as of Nov. 1 and the remainder in the navy, marines, and coast guard. An estimated 1,500,000 others have been discharged or killed.

Thousand British Soldiers in Britain for 9 Day Leave

LONDON, Jan. 1 (AP).—A thousand Tommies, veterans of the D-day landings, returned to Britain today on furlough from the western front. They will have nine days in Britain, seven with their families and two for travel.

Luftwaffe Thrusts at Air Fields Near Battle Lines.

LONDON, Jan. 1 (AP).—The German air force lost at least 241 of its carefully hoarded planes today, with most of the downed planes—208—sacrificed in an attempt to cripple allied aerial superiority by bombing and strafing allied air fields in France, Belgium, and Holland.

The surprise offensive was the greatest by the luftwaffe since its heyday of 1940-'41, but it failed to check the momentum of the allied aerial offensive that sent at least 6,000 American and British planes over the continent on New Year's day. These included more than 1,600 United States 8th air force heavy bombers and fighters.

Use Captured Planes.

A front dispatch said some of the German planes that struck the allied air fields shortly after 9 a. m. were American craft captured by the Nazis in the recent breakthru into Luxemburg.

The dispatch added that they had been repainted with German markings but were clearly identifiable. Ninth air force fighters were able to knock down 83 of the enemy planes, R. A. F. fighters bagged another 84 and anti-aircraft gunners picked off an additional 41.

Other German losses included 17 Nazi fighters downed by the fighters that escorted the 8th air force heavies in a sweep against an oil refinery at Dollbergen and the rail network around Coblenz, and 16 Nazi planes knocked out by the 1st tactical air force in support of the United States 7th army.

Losses Mount Above 300.

In the last 36 hours more than 337 Nazi planes have been knocked out as the allies hurled more than 11,000 planes at the enemy.

The Germans came sweeping in today in groups of 50 to 75 planes.

First reports placed allied plane losses today at 25. The figure did not include losses of heavy bombers of the 8th air force, which were not yet tabulated. Censorship did not permit the disclosure of how much damage the Germans achieved on the ground.

In a pre-dawn action R. A. F. heavy bombers drained the 170 mile Dortmund-Ems canal, for the fourth time in the war with delayed action bombs.

I'D LIKE RUSSIA TO JOIN WAR ON JAPAN—NIMITZ

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Honolulu, Jan. 1 (AP).—Adm. Nimitz said today he would welcome Russian participation in the Pacific war against Japan. He was asked at a press conference if he would like to have Russia participate on "our side."

The commander in chief of the Pacific fleet answered "yes" and observed: "I'm glad you put that last phrase in—'on our side.'"

Nimitz also said: "We will have to occupy enough of Japan in order to win the peace and enforce the peace."

Must Land in China.

He also declared the China coast was still a goal of the fleet.

He reiterated an assertion of sometime ago that it would be essential to land or the China coast "sometime or another" to secure bases for large scale air attacks on the enemy's homeland.

Nimitz, back from a visit to Guam, Saipan, and other advanced positions, said he didn't think the Japanese would capitulate unless their homeland was occupied.

"I think," he asserted, "that the only safe plan is to assume we must invade their homeland and line up our forces accordingly.

"I foresee an unhappy 1945 for Japan."

He predicted the Japanese would continue to lose cargo and combat ships and would find themselves increasingly cut off from the raw materials of occupied China, Burma, the Indies, and other areas.

He said the British Pacific fleet had not yet arrived but that work of British sea units already were having an effect.

Foresees No Difficulties.

He added that he foresaw "no difficulties whatsoever" in coördinating the British and American fleets and "we welcome their coming into the Pacific."

Nimitz, asked if the Aleutian area would become more active, said: "I believe so."

"We will continue to move in the direction of Japan and seize bases from which we can bring the war closer to Japan," he added. "We are optimistic about our ability."

He said the allied setbacks in Europe would cause delay in reemployment of forces in the Pacific, but added: "We have gotten along so far without resources which are being made available in Europe and we can continue to carry on until the great weight of allied power is shifted against Japan."

3d Army Smashes 94 Tanks; Gains Up to 6 Miles.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Jan. 1 (AP).—The Germans lashed back on the western front today, lunging in a series of five ground attacks against the United States 7th army on the south flank of the western front.

German forces gained some ground in a wooded region south of Bannstein, five miles southeast of Bitche, but were held or thrown back at other points. [Details of fighting on the 7th army front are told in a dispatch from Tribune Correspondent Seymour Korman on page 3.]

Information on the fighting against the enemy's bulge into Belgium, still subject to 24 hours or more delay for security reasons, told of gains up to six miles by Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army at the southwestern corner of the German salient.

In armored battles on both sides of the Bastogne corridor the 3d army destroyed or damaged 94 German tanks and smashed a counter-attack launched at the corridor from the east. In the same area fighter bombers of the United States 9th air force disabled 123 tanks and motor vehicles before noon today.

Nazis Recapture Moircy.

Every attempt by Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's German forces to reduce the 3d army's corridor into Bastogne was repelled. The Nazis' most important gain was one of 200 yards at a point four and a half miles southwest of Bastogne.

The Germans recaptured Moircy, 11 miles west of Bastogne, and gained a mile at another point, but neither enemy advance affected Patton's five mile wide relief corridor. Patton's forces launched a sharp attack north of Bastogne, at the narrowest point of the Nazi salient, and made some progress.

The Nazis continued their feeler stabs against the British and Canadians in the north. Two enemy patrols crossed the Maas [Meuse] river near Roermond but were dispersed before getting very far.

Push Back Thru Tripsrath.

In the Gellenkirchen area north of Aachen, where the Germans recently regained some ground, the allies pushed back thru Tripsrath and now have won back practically all lost territory in that sector.

Gen. Patton threw powerful forces of Yank infantry and armor into his attack in Belgium, pounding hard at the enemy along a front extending from a point two miles southwest of St. Hubert to within five miles of Bastogne, which is 15 miles east of St. Hubert.

A front dispatch said gains of from two to six miles were made on Sunday at points on both sides of St. Hubert, a highly important road junction at the farthest point of the Germans' advance toward Sedan. Third army ground forces destroyed at least 32 German tanks, while supporting allied battle planes destroyed another 35 and damaged 27.

Waist of Salient 13 Miles.

Potentially the most dangerous to the extended Nazis was Patton's drive immediately north of Bastogne, where the waist of the enemy salient had been reduced to 13 miles. From three to five Nazi divisions were estimated to be in the exposed western end of the bulge and in danger of entrapment.

Supreme headquarters confirmed the recapture of Rochefort, at the extreme western tip of the enemy salient. Front dispatches reported only patrol actions along the northern flank of the bulge.

American patrols failed to contact the enemy along a stretch of nearly five miles in the vicinity of Rochefort, possibly indicating the Nazis were withdrawing from the northwest corner of their salient.

Late Saturday and early Sunday the Germans attempted to infiltrate American positions two and a half miles west of Grandmenil, 14 miles southwest of Stavelot, but ran into a doughboy trap. The Yanks let them come in, then surrounded the

ONE GROUP BAGS 33

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES IN GERMANY, Jan. 1.—Under chill Holland skies this morning two flights of American fighter pilots fought and won a battle against 50 or 60 German air force planes.

During 15 minutes of fighting above a little American air strip not far from the village of Weerd, Mustangs and Thunderbolts destroyed a total of 33 German planes, probably destroyed five, and damaged 11 more. Only one American plane was lost in the air, but the pilot parachuted to safety. It was a victory so overwhelming that it was almost unbelievable.

There were multiple victories galore in those few wild moments. Three Americans got four German planes apiece. Others got three and two. One Thunderbolt pilot blew up an enemy craft with a rocket—

DEMAND BRITAIN ACT NOW TO GAIN LEG IN AIR RACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 2 [Tuesday].—The demand that converted bombers with ground and air crews be turned over to the Atlantic passenger service so Britain could build up a basis for competition with United States air lines after the war was made editorially in today's Daily Sketch.

The paper disapproves of government control of aviation and complains that British airways are "painfully short of equipment and personnel on the Atlantic service" and can't do the job efficiently or reliably. It says that at present only five converted Liberators [the United States army's B-24 heavy bomber] are available for the Atlantic route, while at least a dozen with the requisite ground staffs are necessary.

"Now we face fierce American competition of air lines run on an individualistic, profit making basis," the Sketch adds. "We start with the great handicap of trying to equal their performance when ours are run by government control, with all its fatal defects. We ought, therefore, now to equip ourselves for the coming race."

Nazis and at last report were mopping them up.

On the south the battle remained fluid, with both sides concentrating on trying to pinch off large segments of opposing troops. Patton's forces were reported to have made some progress in an attack south of Wiltz, nine miles east of Bastogne, and recaptured Reisdorf on the Sure river just inside the Luxemburg border from Germany.

The Germans employed from 35 to 50 tanks in an attack southeast of Bastogne on Saturday, but lost 18 of them and did not realize their objective of cutting the Bastogne-Arlon road along which American men and armor have been pouring into and thru Bastogne. Dispatches said the Nazis continued to employ many infantrymen dressed in American uniforms.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Monday's German war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin said:

"Heavy fighting is taking place at the south part of our break-in area between the Meuse and Moselle. Renewed United States attempts to retain the dent in our positions south and west of Bastogne, made with strong tank forces, proved unsuccessful and cost the enemy particularly high losses in men and material.

"In engagements raging all day long, our well-tried formations destroyed 121 enemy tanks and armored scouting cars and destroyed numerous enemy columns.

"In Alsace-Lorraine, our troops made a number of assaults against the United States front from which major forces have been withdrawn now. On both sides of Bitche, positions of enemy outposts were attacked on a wide front. Enemy attacks were repelled on the main fighting line.

"Enemy traffic in north France and Belgium was effectively attacked last night by our bombers and fighters. Liege and Antwerp continue to be shelled by our long range weapons."

TWO MIDWEST PILOTS DOWN 2 GERMANS IN DAY

LONDON, Jan. 1 (AP).—Two midwestern flyers scored double kills in air battles over Germany yesterday in which at least 94 German planes were downed. They are Lts. Earl Miller, Dearborn, Mich., and William Randolph, Princeton, Ind.

20 LIVE BOMBS FROM PLANE DOT KANSAS PLAINS

Salina, Kas., Jan. 1 (AP).—Twenty live bombs, jettisoned by a crew forced to abandon an army bomber, are scattered over an area about 15 miles northwest of here, army officers warned tonight.

The bombs were dropped from the plane abandoned by the crew last Friday near Salina. The crew parachuted to safety and the plane crashed a short time later near Concordia, Kas.

Maj. Alfred Evans, public relations officer at Smoky Hill army air field, said civilians who tampered with the bombs might cause explosions.

later explaining that he had run out of machine gun ammunition.

A pilot, who was not supposed to fly today, was between bed sheets one moment, then heard the sounds of fighting, and the next moment was streaking across the field attired in pajamas, bedroom slippers, and goggles en route to his plane. He got there a little late but bagged one Focke-Wulf 190.

A pilot, just taking off, shot a German down before he had time to pull up his Mustang's wheels. Planes taking off are never more vulnerable than at such a moment because of lack of speed and maneuverability.

Returns on a Bicycle.

The one American shot down, Flight Officer David Johnson, Pomona, Cal., was not long out of the fighting. He parachuted to safety and arrived back at the field on a bicycle given him by a Dutch farmer who had admonished him, "Goot, shoot more Germans. Goot, hurry." Johnson climbed into another plane and led the chase of remnants of the luftwaffe attackers fleeing back into Germany.

Lt. Robert V. Brulle, 3141 N. Kenneth av., Chicago, destroyed one Focke-Wulf, got one probable, and damaged a third by way of the Windy City's contribution to making this an unforgettable New Year's day for the Nazi air commanders.

The German attack on this particular air strip presented Yank flyers with a dream situation. The German plan obviously was a sneak raid. What they didn't count upon was the fact a flight of Thunderbolts was assembling above the field for a front line mission, while Mustangs were taking off to escort the bombers over Germany. The German pilots swooping down upon the field found themselves caught between flights of America's finest fighter craft.

Lt. Col. John C. Meyer, Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y., American ace in the European theater, got two planes, raising his total to 24 planes destroyed in the air and 13½ on the ground. Thirteen pilots got one plane apiece and anti-aircraft batteries claimed two others, raising the grand total of German losses in this battle to 35 aircraft. It was Col. Meyer who knocked off one of his while taking off from the field.

FIREBUG SETS SIX BLAZES IN HYDE PARK AREA

In zero temperatures, a fleeting firebug set six fires in the Hyde Park district within two and one-half hours last night, imperiling many people, and taxing the capacities of two fire battalions. No one was hurt. Total property damage amounted to about $2,000.

The fires were touched off at 4726 Woodlawn av., 4730 Ellis av., 4637 Ellis av., 4344 Ellis av., 4715 Ingleside av., and 4718 Ellis av. Three separate fires were started in the storeroom of the Woodlawn av. building. At 4637 Ellis the stair carpeting was ignited. A basement storeroom fire also was started at 4344 Ellis, causing $1,500 damage.

Firemen under Chief James Hughes of the 10th battalion and Chief Francis W. O'Brien of the 11th were continuously busy chasing and fighting the fires. Lt. Leo Hardy said the pyromaniac may be the same one suspected of starting the fire in the Lille apartments at 1353 E. 47th pl., Nov. 19, causing seven deaths.

HARMON, AIR PIONEER, LIVES THRU NAZIS' RULE OVER CANNES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANNES, France, Dec. 29 [Delayed]. — Clifford Bourke Harmon, famous American millionaire and retired real estate dealer, was the only male American who remained in Cannes during the German occupation.

Now 78 and suffering from paralysis and cataracts, he was a pioneer aviator in balloons and airplanes and once held pilot's license No. 6 of the Aero Club of America. Twenty years ago he organized the International League of Aviators to make war impossible by swearing flying men not to participate in aerial aggression. He founded the annual Harmon trophy to the world's outstanding aviator.

Harmon staked Serge and David Mdivani to tickets to Texas and jobs with an oil company he controled, and from that start they and their brother Alexis began their campaign of marrying American heiresses.

YOKEL BEGUILED BY TENUOUS ARTS OF CAFE SOCIETY

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—The center of Manhattan—all around Broadway and Times Square—may be even more gay and gaudy today than it was a generation ago, but it is doubtful if the customers get anything like the psychic return for their money that their mothers and fathers did.

The sense of sin, which shocked yet satisfied, is gone. So is the tremendous contrast to other places. Floor shows, exhibits of juvenile female epidermis, legs hoisted in the air more or less rhythmically—those can be seen in San Francisco or Cleveland or Chicago, even in Little Rock or Wichita.

Instead New York has developed something else—what is called the café, altho it bears no resemblance whatever to the old European coffee house, or even to the old fashioned American saloon, which in genteel moments called itself a café. No; it is just the night joint, only it is supposed to be "sophisticated." Rhythm, epidermis, and legs are still there.

Art and Subtlety.

But the decorations are—such is the sales talk—more artful than any where else, the girls more beauteous, the rhythms more insinuating, the jests more subtle.

Above all, you get the society of the rich and the notorious. This, it is implied, is a much more exhilarating spectacle than any thing seen or heard on the floor. For this the gawking yokel is not merely getting much more than his money's worth; he is positively having a privilege conferred on him.

So firmly is this kind of nonsense established that it is the basis of a highly specialized New York industry—being wise about cafe society. Professionals at it are often paid high wages. Their gossip constitutes feature columns in virtually every New York newspaper, and some of those columns are syndicated all over the country.

Maybe these columns help housewives to bear the pain. Certainly they hammer in one impression, that Manhattan's cafes are exclusive. That is unreservedly true; they exclude any one who doesn't have the price.

It's a Theater Center.

The theater has ever been an urban art. Here only perhaps the most hard-crusted critic of New York will have to admit it is supreme. [Movies, of course, are out of consideration, they being a monopoly of southern California.] At least it will be hard to name any dramatic center in the United States which puts on the number of new spectacles seen on Broadway.

["Broadway," it is to be noted, is a symbolic name. It is to the show business what "Wall st." is to finance. Actually most of the theaters are in side streets, but close to Broadway.]

Its shows alone drag multitudes from the outside to New York, largely because there is no other way of getting them. Once upon a time any successful Broadway hit would go on the road; the provinces only had to wait and they would get the best, often with the original company.

Return of Road Shows.

Then the road business went into a decline, attributed largely to the rise of the movies. In the depression years road companies appeared again [a change in taste, perhaps?], and may be expected to continue thru and after the war.

Broadway has supplied American folklore with some of its fixed types—the delectable but dumb chorine with her appetite for terrapin, sables, and sparklers; the stage door Johnny, ridiculous with his bouquet and his senile lechery; the ham actor, one day pawning his overcoat, the next day setting up the drinks; the obtuse producer, determined to give the public what he thinks it wants while the manuscripts of unread masterpieces pile up in front of him.

Is the taste of Broadway, public and producer, above that of the rest of the country? There is a fine subject for otiose logomachy.

Lately it has been raised in some New York newspapers, with the conclusion, of course, that Broadway productions usually are above the heads of the citizens of "trans Hudson America."

Chicago Temerity Rebuked.

Chicago especially got soundly thwacked for having dared lately to put on a play or two without first getting the benediction of Broadway.

The critic who thus ticked off Chicago had to admit that the public of Manhattan does not always give its favor to pure gems of the human spirit—witness the overwhelming popularity of masterpieces of hokum, such as "Abie's Irish Rose."

It's evident, however, that New York would only too easily have the better of this argument, such as it is. The plain fact is that in the theater, as in finance, New York has acquired such a head start, has accumulated so much equipment and specialized skill, that it must far surpass everything else in the whole United States. If it does not, it certainly should.

[Tomorrow—New York, the city of immigrants.]

Home Invaded

IDA LUPINO.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1 [Special].—Helmut Dantine, 26, European actor who became a citizen last year and whose name has recently been linked by Hollywood gossips with Screen Actress Ida Lupino, was booked in the West Los Angeles jail today on complaint of Miss Lupino's secretary, Leslie Forrest.

Helmut Dantine.

The charge against Dantine was "suspicion of battery" and the police blotter showed Miss Forrest had made the arrest in the capacity of a citizen. She told police Dantine invaded Miss Lupino's home via a dining room door last night and went into a bedroom occupied by Miss Rena Cournyn, a house guest.

Miss Forrest said Miss Cournyn appealed to her for help and that in a struggle with Dantine she was bitten on the right arm, wrist, and hand and slapped in the face. Miss Lupino said today she had not been at home during the incident and declined other comment.

JUDGE REFUSES GUILTY PLEA IN SLAYING OF WAC

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 1 (AP).—Judge William D. Bain today refused to accept William Luallen's plea of guilty of murder in the slaying of WAC Corp. Maoma L. Ridings of Warm Springs, Ga., in a hotel room here Aug. 28, 1943. Luallen is to be returned tomorrow to the state prison to complete a 10 to 20 year sentence for burglary.

Judge Bain said the grand jury had not indicted Luallen and said he had received information that the prosecutor's office had obtained "confessions" from two other suspects in the case.

Luallen first accused his former wife, Mrs. Wynona Kidd Luallen, of Knoxville, Tenn., of slaying the WAC. A few days later he told Sheriff Otto Petit that she was innocent and that he was the slayer. Judge Bain said Luallen asked to plead guilty to a second degree murder charge and take a life prison sentence.

GERMANS MAKE 5 ASSAULTS ON 7TH ARMY LINE

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 7TH ARMY IN FRANCE, Jan. 1.—Five enemy ground attacks within a 10 mile stretch on the northern front of the 7th army, the intensification of German artillery fire all day and tonight, and the reappearance of enemy planes have ended a two weeks' lull in this theater.

There was some speculation among army authorities as to whether the day's events presaged a full scale enemy offensive toward American holdings in the Vosges mountain region or were designed to prevent us from shifting any of our forces to other army fronts.

Tanks Join in Attack.

German infantry and tanks struck from the Hasrdt forest. One blow was around Bitche, two were in the dense woods around Bannstein, five miles southeast of Bitche, and two were around Dambach, east of Bannstein. Reports tonight were that we had lost some ground south of Bannstein but that the other assaults were being held. Wissembourg and Berg were shelled particularly heavily.

Since the 7th army got into Germany more than two weeks ago, it has made no notable advances. To the contrary, the 7th has drawn back from forward positions of the third week in December. German activity in the northern sector of our front, however, had been limited until today to combat patroling and harassing fire from the Siegfried line.

The German air force was believed to have sent up more craft last night and today than the 7th army has ever encountered before in France. Thunderbolt fighter-bombers of the 12th tactical air command and B-26 Marauders accepted the challenge eagerly.

Foe Strikes at French.

The Germans' Alsatian pocket in the Colmar-Mulhouse area today became more of an irritant to the French 1st army than at any time in the last month. East and west of Mulhouse, at Kembs on the Rhine and at Ile Napoleon and Thann, enemy patrols were beaten off.

Other hostile patrols sifted into the Vosges west of Colmar and enemy shells fell on Rossfeld, Hutenheim, Ebermunster, Berheim, Rebauville, and Ostheim.

3,648,000 DAYS LOST BY 2,041 BRITISH STRIKES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 1.—A total of 3,648,000 working days was lost in Britain in 2,041 strikes the first 11 months of 1944, the labor ministry announced tonight. The loss was the greatest in 12 years and compared with 1,810,000 days lost during all of 1943.

The coal mining industry reported a loss of 2,446,000 working days as compared to 824,000 days for the corresponding period of 1943. The engineering industry was second with 584,000 days as compared with 390,000 the previous year.

A union leader tonight suggested that many workers, believing the war soon would end, were watchful for any infringements of working conditions which might be carried over into the peace. Thus, one of the most frequent causes of strikes was the introduction of new production methods whereby unskilled labor could be employed on jobs formerly reserved for skilled men. The incidence of strikes was greatest when the allies were doing particularly well on the western front.

2D JAP BALLOON FOUND IN OREGON CAUGHT IN TREE

Portland, Ore., Jan. 1 (AP).—A giant balloon, believed of Japanese origin and similar to one found near Kalispell, Mont., was being investigated today by FBI agents.

The balloon, lodged in a tree 70 feet above the base, was discovered yesterday about 10 miles west of Estacada, Ore.

The FBI refused to say whether the balloon was identical to the one found in Montana, which was of paper, 23½ feet in diameter, and with a gas capacity of 18,000 cubic feet. No explosives were found with the balloon near Estacada.

TALES OF HEROES ABOUND IN WAKE OF GERMAN PUSH

Hold Chateau Against Ring of Nazis.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY IN BELGIUM, Jan. 1.—Tales of American heroism keep cropping up in such numbers in the wake of the German counter-offensive that they would become commonplace, except that heroism never fails to seem fresh and new.

In one town a small company of Americans fought off enemy tanks for more than 24 hours, knocking out some of them with bazookas, and using houses as fortresses. As far as is known they're still holding out. The last message from them said, "We're moving to another house because this one's burning."

No Pancakes for Nazis.

In another part of the same sector the command post of one unit—a stone chateau—was encircled. Every one grabbed a rifle or other weapon, including two Chinese cooks, one of whom was a Chicagoan, Pvt. Hong Eng, of 108 N. Clark st. But Eng first poured out all the pancake batter he'd just mixed up as a precaution against its being of aid or comfort to the enemy. When the firing stopped the chateau was still American owned, and 25 Germans were scattered about the landscape outside.

In still another sector a lone G. I. with a light machine gun pinned down an entire German company long enough to force them to lose contact with the remainder of their battalion, saving an American unit from serious trouble.

Foe in U. S. Uniforms.

Reports of Germans using American uniforms still are current. In one instance on Saturday a tank destroyer outfit saw 150 G. Is in a sector where they shouldn't have been. The tank destroyers held fire until they saw [1] that they escorted four German tanks and [2] that they wore German helmets. When the firing ceased, all except one German soldier was dead, and he was wounded and taken prisoner.

Among the Chicagoans seen yesterday and today were Maj. Alex Tulsky, 58 E. Washington st., University of Illinois graduate now commanding the 2d platoon of the 16th field hospital, stationed for many months in the middle east; Corp. Marian J. Ryszkowski, 2118 North av., electrician of a unit, and Sgt. Dewitt Gilpin, whose wedding anniversary was New Year's eve. He requested that his wife, Mary, of 1824 Lincoln Park West be informed he would like to be taking her to dinner at Rickett's.

Britain Curbs Exchange of Foreign Currencies

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 1.—British service men and women arriving from the continent won't be able to change French and Belgian francs or Dutch guilders into sterling at any British bank starting tomorrow under a ruling issued by the Bank of England tonight. The ban is aimed at discouraging currency smuggling. The new arrangement means that foreign currency must be changed at the paymaster offices abroad or at service pay offices in Britain.

'ARMY PRIVATE' ROBS CASHIER OF EVANSTON L

A man wearing the uniform of an army private held up Miss June Yachem, 40, of 607 Melrose av., Kenilworth, cashier in the Noyes st., Evanston, elevated station yesterday and robbed her of $41.40, she told Evanston police.

Evelyn Rezavy, 17, of 4009 W. 30th st., and Rita Bevignani, 18, of 7743 Throop st., who were in the station at the time, fled east in Noyes st. They heard the holdup man following them, but he passed them without molesting either, and disappeared.

The girls then returned to the station, where Miss Bevignani had dropped her purse, containing $35, in a telephone booth. Both girls were en route to the home of Miss Helen Sederstrom, 2107 Wesley av., Evanston.

Control 600 Blocks in West Half of City.

LONDON, Jan. 1 (AP).—The full fury of the Red army was concentrated on Budapest tonight. Its storm troops pushed ahead steadily in the embattled Hungarian capital from both the east and the west.

Another 200 blocks of buildings in Buda, the west half of the city, were captured, giving the attackers control of 600 blocks and placing them close to the heart of the metropolis on the western bank of the Danube.

Once Buda is in soviet hands, Red army guns placed on its heights will command the plain of Pest and will be able to level German defenses east of the river.

Capture Rail Station.

In Pest, the German-Hungarian defenders already are hemmed in by Russian forces in an arc thru the eastern suburbs and within the city limits at several points. Moscow's bulletin reported the capture of the railway station of Rakos in the eastern part of the city.

Hand-to-hand and house-to-house fighting narrowed the enemy-held zone in Buda to an area less than four miles wide and a mile deep. Russian front line reports said veteran divisions of Marshal Feodor Tolbuhkin were concentrating on a mop-up of Buda before launching an all-out attack on Pest. A Cairo radio broadcast said all the Germans had been driven from Buda.

The Russians said the enemy garrison, altho supplied by air, had lost more than 1,000 men. They also said they had knocked out 24 German tanks and 13 armored troop carriers and had taken 429 prisoners in Budapest. In the last three days the Russians claim to have killed more than 7,300 of Budapest's defenders.

Use Rocket Mortars.

With enemy dead running into thousands within 48 hours the Red army brought virtually every weapon known in modern warfare into action.

Katushas, the dread rocket mortars, were brought in on fleets of American made trucks to blast street fortifications. German counter-attacks with tanks and self-propelled guns were beaten back thru the alleys and boulevards of what once was one of Europe's most beautiful cities.

Meanwhile, the Russian drive on Losonc [Lucenec], Slovak communications hub near the Hungarian border above Budapest, continued with the capture of 14 places. The advance brought Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's forces within two miles south of the city.

The German radio said that a giant battle had ended on the Courland peninsula in Latvia. It said 46 soviet assault and artillery units were repulsed after an attack which lasted 11 days.

The German report said that the Russians suffered severe losses.

REPORT RUSSIA SPECIFIES CIO LABOR IN U.S.

Post-War Contracts May Be Affected.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—Soviet Russia, emerging openly as an ally of Sidney Hillman in his drive for world labor control, is demanding exclusive use of CIO labor in post-war contracts to be allotted American industry, it was reported on high authority today.

One of the largest shipbuilding companies in the United States, it was stated, was recently approached by Russia and offered a huge contract for post-war construction of vessels with the stipulation that the Congress of Industrial organizations must control employes on the job.

Had to Rebuff Offer.

The American Federation of Labor is highly organized in this field and the head of the company tentatively turned down the contract, it was reported.

Only a few leaders in the inner circles of labor have received this report, which is expected to arouse excitement in the camps of both major labor organizations.

Hillman, political boss of the CIO, has recently been in Europe as leader of a delegation that met with British and Soviet trades union leaders to draft the agenda for the World Trades Union conference scheduled for London Feb. 6.

The American Federation of Labor, the railway brotherhoods, and the United Mine Workers had declined to coöperate in the conference, contending that they could not participate in an international conference with soviet labor unions because the latter are not free agents but agencies of their government.

PAC Performance Cited.

Hillman told the English press that the political action committee, which played a potent part in President Roosevelt's reëlection, had created a large mass movement in the United States in favor of international coöperation. He declared that labor should be organized to do in the international scene what it did in the national scene in the United States.

Eighteen members of the CIO executive board are followers of the Communist party line, having extensive affiliations with pro-soviet organizations, according to a report last March of the house committee on un-American activities.

The soviet stipulation for CIO labor alone in any contract awarded in this country appears to furnish concrete evidence, it was said, of the hitherto hidden hook-up between the Communist government and the labor organization.

HUNGARIANS ASK ARMISTICE AT MOSCOW TALK

LONDON, Jan. 1 (AP).—A delegation of the provisional national government of Hungary has arrived in Moscow to seek an armistice, the Moscow radio reported tonight. The delegation was met at Kiev by V. G. Dekanozov, deputy commissar of foreign affairs, and other soviet officials, the broadcast said. The provisional government, organized in occupied Hungarian territory, has appealed to Hungarians to join the allies in the war on Germany.

YANKS REGAIN LOST GROUND IN ITALIAN VALLEY

ROME, Jan. 1 (AP).—Fifth army troops sweeping back across the Serchio River valley, where they were forced to give ground before a strong Nazi offensive last week, have recaptured all territory east of the river, allied headquarters announced today. Driving forward a mile and a half north of recaptured Barga, allied troops have occupied Sommocionia, a tiny village east of the Serchio river and one of the first towns taken by the Germans.

West of the Serchio other 5th army units made small advances. The Germans maintained their hold on Gallicano, but the town was covered by allied artillery fire from the surrounding hills.

Along the Po valley front 8th army troops continued to push forward north of Faenza, capturing several localities against strong German resistance. An allied attempt to cross the Senior river, near Rivola, on the right flank of the 5th army sector, encountered heavy German artillery fire and patrols had to withdraw.

BRITISH BREAK ELAS SIEGE ARC AROUND ATHENS

Peace Negotiations Still Going On.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 1.—Interest in Athens momentarily shifted today from politics to military operations with the announcement that British and Greek government forces have cleared ELAS insurgents from two-thirds of Athens and half of the port city of Piraeus.

The virtual stranglehold the ELAS guerrillas had on Athens early in the revolt, when British and nationalist Greek units were besieged in a half mile square in the heart of the city, now definitely is broken. In the offensive begun three days ago and still continuing, British and government troops, supported by medium artillery, tanks, armored cars, and planes, have driven the leftists from the southern section of the city and now are gaining ground in the densely built up northern area.

Speculate on New Premier.

Politically there has been no tangible development since Archbishop Damaskinos assumed the regency at noon yesterday. Athens' innumerable rumor mongers, mostly little men who spend their time whispering in dark corners of Grand Bretagne hotel lounges, now are busily speculating on candidates for Greece's new premier.

But Damaskinos, who as regent will select a new premier to replace George Papandreou and his lame duck cabinet members, remained silent. In the last 24 hours he conferred with countless political leaders.

ELAS delegates were meeting with Lt. Gen. R. M. Scobie, British commander in Athens, to discuss armistice terms, it was admitted by the British tonight. An ELAS delegation, headed by John Zevgos, member of the Communist party's central committee and leader of the leftist liberation front, conferred this afternoon with Scobie. Another meeting is said to be slated for tomorrow.

Asks Surrender of Arms.

Yesterday Damaskinos declared an immediate truce was necessary and called upon the leftists to lay down their arms to permit a democratic solution of the crisis.

The British army revealed this morning that to Dec. 30 equipment captured from the ELAS included 3,464 rifles, 85 machine guns, 111,000 rounds of ammunition, three old 75 mm. guns, and two flamethrowers which had not been used. Almost 9,000 guerrillas were captured, which is more than a third of ELAS' original strength here of 25,000.

Contrary to earlier statements, it was revealed only one German had been taken. He was a deserter employed in an ELAS cookhouse.

The army revealed that the Athens radio station, disabled two days ago in an ELAS attack, now has been abandoned.

The British army also disclosed that Gen. Napoleon Zervas, leader of the EDES [rightist] guerrilla army which has been under heavy attack by ELAS forces in Epirus, has fled from the Greek mainland with 1,000 of his original command of 12,000 men. They were evacuated by boat to the islands of Corfu and Levkas.

LABORER DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

FARMER SEIZES 2 OF 19 ESCAPED NAZI PRISONERS

Phoenix, Ariz. Jan. 1 (AP).—Two of 19 German U-boat prisoners still at large after a sensational Christmas Eve break here were recaptured tonight.

H. R. Duffey, agent in charge of the federal bureau of investigation, said the prisoners, Capt. Hans Werner Krauss and Helmut Drescher, were apprehended 12 miles west of Casa Grande, Ariz., by a farmer. This was about 65 miles from Papago Park camp from which they fled.

They were the first escapees to be caught since six of the original 25 who fled were taken in custody a few hours after the break was discovered Dec. 24.

U. S. WITHHOLDS RECOGNITION OF LUBLIN REGIME

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1 (AP).—The United States continues to recognize the exile Polish government in London despite claims of the soviet-sponsored regime at Lublin to be Poland's provisional government.

Secretary of State Stettinius so stated today as the diplomatic front took on an extraordinarily busy character for the New Year's day holiday.

There were these developments on the American diplomatic front:

1. French Ambassador Henri Bonnet made a formal call on President Roosevelt to present his credentials, preliminary to signing up France as the 36th allied nation.

In an exchange of letters President Roosevelt welcomed Bonnet and promised that the United States will work with France "for the victory which is our common and immediate goal as well as for the undying principles which have bound our countries together for a century and a half."

"Critical Period in War."

"Today," Mr. Roosevelt said, "we stand at a critical period in the war. Tho the road may still be hard, the triumph, in which all the allied nations will share, is certain."

2. The allied nations became three years old today and a ceremony marking the occasion was held in the state department's conference room late today, with all of the allied nations having representatives present except Salvador.

The President in a statement asserted that "it is only as united nations that we have it within our power to win complete and final victory in this war and then to win the peace."

Hails Greek Regency.

3. Stettinius characterized the creation of a regency for embattled Greece as an important step for the solution of the situation there. As such, he added, the regency is welcomed by the American government.

4. Stettinius said the state department is studying every problem of a territorial nature which later may confront this government in its collaboration with the other allies. He declined to confirm reports the United States has worked out a detailed plan for territorial changes in eastern Europe.

INJURED IN STAIRWAY FALL.

Lloyd Jordan, 41, of 1212 Larrabee st., suffered leg injuries yesterday when he fell down a stairway at 1127 Hudson av.

NEW POLISH REGIME ON CLOSEST TERMS WITH SOVIET RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Jan. 1 (AP).—There appears no doubt that the new Polish provisional government at Lublin will enjoy the same friendly intimacy with soviet Russia that the committee of national liberation has shared. The new cabinet is headed by veterans of the committee which last July signed an agreement with the soviet government to assume responsibility for civil administration of occupied Polish territory.

Last month France sent diplomatic representation to Lublin, and there have been indications here that Britain, Czechoslovakia, and Yugoslavia would follow suit.

[It was stated authoritatively in London, however, that formation of the Lublin government does not alter present relations of the British government with the Polish exiled government in London, which it continues to recognize.]

CHICAGO GREEKS HAIL REGENT'S APPOINTMENT

Chicago Greek leaders yesterday hailed appointment of Archbishop Damaskinos as regent for Greece as a move that should eliminate bloodshed in Athens and give the Greek people an opportunity to reëstablish their own government.

Nicholas D. Cherones, publisher of a Greek newspaper and a leader in the Greek-American committee for national unity, declared Damaskinos is an honest and fearless leader and perhaps the only man who could bring the Greek people together. Dr. Timothy Bishop, head of the Greek Professional Men's league, said Damaskinos probably would achieve order quickly thru formation of a coalition government.

The committee for national unity yesterday sent a cablegram to Damaskinos, wishing him success in ending civil strife.

The Chicagoans agreed that the Damaskinos regime could succeed only if British influence is not too strongly felt. Cherones said the Greeks distrust the British for their stand in favor of the monarchy. The United States should be strongly represented in Greece, he added, and the military rule should be headed by an American.

MOVIE CAMERA STOLEN.

Louis Costanzo, 2620 Kimball av., told police yesterday that burglars took a movie camera and a projector, a wristwatch, and a shotgun from his home.

CHICAGO POLES CHALLENGE F.D.R. ON LUBLIN ACTS

Leaders of six million Americans of Polish extraction yesterday said that the Roosevelt administration is now confronted with a test of its claim that it has raised an army of 12 million men to fight and die, if necessary, for democracy.

"If Mr. Roosevelt and the state department support the Lublin committee as [Premier] Churchill has done, then we'll know that this country is not in the war for democracy, but for something else," said John J. Olejniczak, treasurer of the Polish-American congress. "If that happens, we'll know that our boys dying on foreign battle fields are dying in vain.

Olejniczak and other Chicago directors of the Polish-American congress commented after a London dispatch announced that the soviet sponsored Polish national committee of liberation at Lublin had proclaimed itself as the provisional government of Poland, after "breaking forever with the Polish government in exile" in London.

"The only rightful Polish government is the Polish government in exile in London," Olejniczak said.

U. S. PLANES HIT 8 JAP SHIPS IN A LUZON GULF

Fly 150 Miles Beyond Manila in Raid.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Jan. 2 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Planes based in the central Philippines, making their deepest penetration of Luzon Island, swept 150 miles beyond Manila Saturday to sink or probably sink three enemy warships and five cargo vessels at Lingayen gulf. The Japanese send supplies and men to Luzon thru Lingayen gulf.

Low-flying medium bombers, attack planes and fighter bombers made the attack in "substantial force," flying from new bases on Mindoro, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

Returning flyers said they saw some ships go down and feel certain the others also sank.

Two Destroyers Hit.

Two destroyers, a destroyer escort, three 8,000 ton freighter-transports, and two cargo vessels were the ships either sunk or probably sunk.

MacArthur's bombers, based at Leyte and Mindoro in the central Philippines, gave Luzon a thoro aerial spanking.

Liberators bombed Nielson airdrome in the outskirts of Manila. Corsairs pounced on ammunition trains in southern Luzon, exploding one and strafing three others. Five Japanese planes were shot down in the Manila area.

More than 50 marine Corsairs participated in these operations around Batangas, southwest Luzon—which is immediately north of the new American position on Mindoro.

Bomb Fuel Tanks.

Elsewhere in the Philippines, bombers destroyed three fuel tanks on Mindanao and started fires on airdromes at Panay, Negros, and Cebu.

The Japanese air force, continuing to manifest concern over America's new air bases at Mindoro—within half an hour's flying time of Manila—sent 15 more planes against it and three were downed. Anti-aircraft guns and night fighters opposed the raiders.

[The Japanese Domei news agency said 13 more American transports and three additional cruisers had been sunk or damaged at Mindoro for a two day total of 33 ships.]

On Leyte, where organized enemy resistance ended Christmas day, Gen. MacArthur said mopup squads had killed 995 more enemy soldiers in a day, bringing the total to 118,982. Eleven prisoners were taken.

Bomb Iwo Island Again.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Honolulu, Jan. 1 (AP).—Iwo Island, Japanese base on the road to Tokyo, was hammered Saturday by strategic air force Liberator bombers in their 24th consecutive daily strike against that Volcano island, Adm. Nimitz reported today.

The same day rocket firing marine Mitchell bombers hit a small coastal cargo ship near the Bonin Islands, north of Iwo. The vessel was left dead in the water.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, the Japanese premier, broadcast to the subject peoples of occupied Asia yesterday the claim that Japan would drive its foes from the entire greater East Asia in 1945, but acknowledged that the military situation in the Philippines was growing in intensity.

IOWAN, TOP ACE IN CHINA WAR, DIES IN ACTION

HDQ. 14TH AIR FORCE IN CHINA, Dec. 20 [Delayed by Censor]—(AP).—Lt. Col. William Norman Reed, 27, Marion, Ia., ranking active ace of the 14th air force, was killed last night on a mission. The circumstances of his death were not disclosed.

Reed was acting commander of the Al's Assassins fighter group of the Chinese-American composite wing, having succeeded Col. T. Alan Bennett, now acting wing commander.

Reed shared honors with Col. David L. Hill for enemy planes downed in this theater. Hill, now in the United States, has downed 18¼ and Reed had 16½. Reed's score will go higher because he had victories still to be credited officially.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. A. W. Quackenbush, 11135 Longwood dr.]

THE QUESTION.

What well-worn expression irritates you?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

William Huributt, office boy, 3744 Sheffield av.—"Would you believe it?" or "Can you imagine that?" irritates me. There's no reply to such a useless question. If I didn't believe something it would be rude for me to say, "No, I don't." There's practically nothing that I can't imagine, so that is a meaningless remark.

Laverne Jacobson, stenographer, 3716 Kenneth av.—Some expressions are clever when they are first used, but too often they are run into the ground. One that has no place in my vocabulary and gripes me when it is within hearing range is, "That's for sure." There are so many other ways to express agreement or approval.

Jane Bullinger, comptometer operator, 3743 Magnolia av. — So many times I've been left holding the bag—then some one asserts that "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." The reason it makes me squirm when I hear it is that the advice comes too late and strikes me as another way of saying, "I told you so."

J. S. McIntosh, educational director, 2108 Forest View rd., Evanston—"Don't take any wooden nickels" is an expression that is empty as far as any thought is concerned. It's just a phrase that marks an inattentive mind. Besides, I'm Scotch and whoever heard of a Scotchman taking wooden nickles, anyway?

Lee Kravich, clerk, 2916 N. Sawyer av.—Right in the middle of a conversation an outsider will interrupt with a stupid "You don't say?" It's often been used as a means of getting attention but to me it shows rudeness in the person who says it. Sometimes a person will use it as a polite way of saying, "I don't believe it."

Beatris S. Huhn, bookkeeper, 6110 N. Winthrop av.—It is especially irritating to ask for a scarce article in a store and have a clerk reply, "Don't you know there's a war on?" Of course I know there's a war on, as does every one else, but that's no excuse for many people to be impolite. There are plenty of courteous expressions.

Don't Shirk Manual Labor, Ex-Duce Tells Italians

LONDON, Jan. 1 (AP).—Benito Mussolini has appealed to Italians not to shirk manual labor, a Berlin broadcast said today. "Even if the time has not come for you to bear arms once again," he was quoted, "do not shirk labor, which in Germany is regarded as the duty of all."

BRITISH REACH EDGE OF RICE BOWL IN BURMA

HDQ. ALLIED LAND FORCES IN SOUTHEAST ASIA, Jan. 1 (AP).—British imperial troops have entered Kaduma, 16 miles from Yeu. The triple drive from northern Burma has reached the northern and western rim of the Burma rice bowl where all roads lead to Mandalay.

The approach to Yeu, 70 miles northeast of Mandalay, was announced by the headquarters of Adm. Mountbatten today.

At the same time it was announced that other British forces fighting southward along the Bay of Bengal coast occupied Rathedaung, key Japanese defense position on the east side of the Mayu river, 25 miles north of Akyab.

Meet Sporadic Resistance.

The triple British columns, striking down the Irrawaddy river, the Mandalay railroad and across from the Chindwin river toward Yeu in a converging drive on Mandalay, are meeting only occasional roadblocks and sporadic resistance.

The column nearing Yeu threatens the rear of Japanese fighting south of Wuntho where the British are 90 miles north of Mandalay.

The positions of the contesting forces in 1945 are exactly the reverse of 1942 when the allies took a "hell of a beating" in the words of Gen. Stilwell. All natural lines of communication in Burma run north and south. The Japanese entered the southern ends of these corridors and quickly drove the allies from their sea supplies.

Hold Entrances to Plain.

It took three heartbreaking years of inching in from east and west at a right angle across Burma's mountainous ridges before the allies gained access to the northern ends of these corridors.

Now they hold the entrances to the central Burma plain where the lack of natural defenses favors the allies with their preponderant weight of men and material and sea and air power.

B-29S RING OUT OLD YEAR, RING IN NEW OVER TOKYO

TWENTY-FIRST BOMBER COMMAND, Saipan, Jan. 1 (AP).—A Super Fortress piloted by Lt. K. M. Smith, Potsdam, N. Y., dropped explosives on Tokyo's harbor area at 10:52 p. m. New Year's eve, Saipan time, to win the distinction of being the last bomber over Tokyo in 1944.

Two hours later another B-29, commanded by Capt. Charles C. Fishburne Jr., Darien, Ga., and Dyersburg, Tenn., became the first to bomb Tokyo in 1945. It dropped its explosives at 1:11 a. m., Saipan time.

After his bombs were away and while the B-29 was 45 miles from Tokyo, Smith's tail gunner, Corp. D. L. Johnson, Massena, Ia., saw explosions from Smith's bombs so powerful that a great glow was reflected in the clouds ahead. L. W. Winter of Sandoval, Ill., also was in Smith's crew.

Three hours later, at 4:10 a. m., a third Super Fortress, piloted by Capt. Nelson H. McLoney, Cynthiana, Ky., and navigated by Lt. William H. Frew, Terre Haute, Ind., gave Tokyo its third bombing of the night.

PVT. NED MERRION JR. WOUNDED IN ACTION AGAINST GERMANS

Pvt. Joseph E. [Ned] Merrion Jr., 19, an infantryman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Merrion, 6725 Constance av., was seriously wounded in action in Germany Dec. 14. # MYSTERY FLARES TAG ALONG WITH U.S. NIGHT PILOTS

Yanks Call Nazi Weapon a 'Foo Fighter.'

A U. S. NIGHT FIGHTER BASE, France, Jan. 1 (AP).—The Nazis have thrown something new into the night skies over Germany—the weird, mysterious "Foo-Fighter," balls of fire which race alongside the wings of American fighter planes flying intruder missions over the reich.

American pilots have been encountering the eerie "Foo-Fighter" for more than a month in their night flights. No one apparently knows exactly what this sky weapon is.

The balls of fire appear suddenly and accompany the planes for miles. They appear to be radio controled from the ground and manage to keep up with planes flying 300 miles an hour, official intelligence reports reveal.

Three Kinds of Lights.

"There are three kinds of these lights we call 'Foo-Fighters,'" said Lt. Donald Meiers of Chicago. "One is red balls of fire which appear off our wing tips and fly along with us. The second is a vertical row of three balls of fire which fly in front of us, and the third is a group of about 15 lights which appear off in the distance—like a Christmas tree up in the air—and flicker on and off."

The pilots of this night fighter squadron find these fiery balls the weirdest thing they have as yet encountered. They are convinced that the "Foo-Fighter" is designed to be a psychological weapon as well as military altho it is not the nature of the fire balls to attack planes.

"A 'Foo-Fighter' picked me up recently at 700 feet and chased me 20 miles down the Rhine valley," Meiers said. "I turned to starboard and two balls of fire turned with me. I turned to the port side and they turned with me. We were going 260 miles an hour and the balls were keeping right up with us.

Finally Zooms Up.

"On another occasion when a 'Foo-Fighter' picked us up, I dove at 360 miles per hour. It kept right off our wing tips for awhile and then zoomed up into the sky.

"When I first saw the things off my wing tips I had the horrible thought that a German on the ground was ready to press a button and explode them. But they don't explode or attack us. They just seem to follow us like will-o'-the-wisps."

[An Associated Press report from Paris on Dec. 31 said the Germans had thrown silvery balls into the air against day raiders. Pilots then reported they had seen these objects, both individually and in clusters, during forays over the reich.]

"Looked Like Shooting Stars."

Lt. Wallace Gould of Silver Creek, N. Y., said the lights followed his wing tips for a while and then, in a few seconds, zoomed 20,000 feet into the air out of sight.

Lt. Edward Schlater of Oshkosh, Wis., said he had seen the "Foo-Fighter" on two occasions and it "looked like shooting stars."

Pilots agreed that the balls of fire were more numerous over large German cities. None saw any structure on the fire balls.

Other pilots at this base who have encountered "Foo-Fighters" include Lieutenants Henry Bockstige, Evansville, Ind., and Chester Buoscio, 9752 Avenue M, Chicago; Radio Navigators Lieutenants Anderson Henshaw, Carrier Mills, Ill., and Richard Early, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Many Encounter Flares.

Among other flyers who have reported encountering the flares were Lieutenants Garland Moore, Charleston, W. Va., Hubert Moore, Greenwood, Miss., Austin Tetry, York, Pa., Warren Rodich, New Orleans, La., Frank Sardon, El Segundo, Cal., and Flight Officers Murphy Painter, Gonzales, La., Razomond Meyer, Middletown, Conn., and Lt. Richard Urich, Trenton, N. J.

COUPLES WED HERE IN 30 YRS. TOTAL 1,161,477

A survey completed with the close of 1944 discloses that within the last generation—30 years—Cook county has issued 1,161,477 marriage licenses, and in the same period its courts have terminated 229,931 marriages by granting divorce decrees.

The number of individuals licensed to wed in the 30 year period is more than half of the county's population [1940 census] of 4,063,342.

Ratio Since 1915 Higher.

The number divorced, as shown by the survey, exceeds the population of Arizona.

Impressive to sociologists and others concerned with the marriage-divorce problem is the fact that within the one generation the Cook county ratio of divorces to marriages has increased from one divorce to every 7.6 marriages in 1915 to an approximate one divorce to every 3.3 marriages in 1944.

In the last year divorces reached an all-time high of 11,813, as compared with 4,095 granted in 1915. The increase in the number of marriage licenses issued in 1944 over 1915 was 23 per cent. Cook county's populational increase during the 30 years is estimated at about 50 per cent.

Greater Increase Seen.

A prediction of an even greater increase in the number of divorces was made yesterday by Superior Court Judge John A. Sbarbaro, who with Judges Joseph Sabath and William J. Lindsay, is assigned to the hearing of divorce cases.

Judge Sbarbaro attributed last year's record divorce total to a combination of factors: hasty war marriages, inconstancy of wives of absent service men, war prosperity, and greater employment of wives in industry due to war. The same factors are bound to boost the divorce total during 1945 and during the remainder of the war, he said.

The marriage and divorce statistics for the last generation cover World War I., the boom period of the 1920s, the depression, and the so-called recovery years of the 1930's, and the prewar and war periods of the 1940s.

Tabulation Given.

A tabulation of Cook county marriages and divorces for the 30 year period, and the approximate ratio of divorces to marriages for each year follows:

| Year. | Number of marriage licenses issued. | Number of divorces granted. | Approximate ratio, divorces to marriages. |

The survey is based on records obtained from Henry A. Sonnenschein and John Conroy, clerks of the Superior court, Michael J. Flynn, county clerk, and from the United States census bureau.

LOSES RING WORTH $300.

Gus Lipman, 5001 Drexel blvd., last night told police he lost a star sapphire ring valued at $300 near his home.

800 at Ceremony

About 800 persons crowded into the internal revenue bureau offices in the United States courthouse yesterday to witness the induction ceremonies of Nigel D. Campbell as new revenue collector for the 1st district of Illinois. Roy H. Johnson, clerk of the federal District court, administered the oath.

Mr. Campbell, assistant collector since 1942, recently was appointed to succeed Carter H. Harrison, who resigned, effective Dec. 31, after 11 years in the federal post. Campbell, who is 49, lives at 7061 N. Damen av.

Among the many well wishers at the ceremonies were Mayor Kelly and the heads of various federal agencies. The mayor was presented with $510 for the service men's centers by Mr. Harrison, a gift received by him as a farewell token from his staff.

PILOT AND BABY KILLED AS PLANE RIPS FIVE HOMES

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1 [Special].—Spiraling out of control, an A-26 bombing plane crashed into the Biltmore Homes private housing project in North Long Beach today, killing its pilot and a 7 month old baby. The bomber demolished one house, ripped sections from three more, and burned a fifth. Four persons were injured.

Ronald F. Bollinger, 34, flight supervisor of the Douglas Aircraft company's Long Beach plant, who was alone in the plane, was killed.

Gail Warner, the baby, died in the house that burned to the ground. Her parents, Harold S. Warner, 31, and Patricia Warner, 25, and her brother, Gary 3, suffered burns.

ACTION TO CUT TRAVEL HINTED BY ODT DIRECTOR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1 (AP).—A hint of early action to reduce passenger travel came today from ODT Director Johnson. Johnson said cooperation of the public has not been "nearly enough," but declined to say in an interview what specific steps he has in mind. Because the office of defense transportation regards travel rationing as involving complex administrative problems, it was believed the first move would be directed against conventions and similar gatherings.

290 REDS FREED BY YANKS FACE DEATH AT HOME

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MARSEILLE, France, Dec. 25 [Delayed].—The problem of Russian prisoners who had been forced into the German army and captured by the Americans and whose status prompted a protest to the United States by the soviet government, has been settled to the satisfaction of everybody except the prisoners themselves.

The American army, in yielding to the Moscow demand, relinquished the prisoners to French authorities but is still feeding them. The French, coöperating with a soviet agent in Marseille, are preparing to repatriate the Russians.

290 of 450 Accused.

An investigation of the prisoners is said to have disclosed that only 160 of 450 captured are in good standing. The 290 others are accused of having voluntarily joined Nazi labor units after the Germans occupied the areas in which they dwelt. These 290 face charges of treason when they reach soviet soil and the punishment may be death.

Allied officials who examined the status of the Russians are inclined to believe their statement that they had to join German labor battalions, starve, or be shot. But the 160 who satisfied the Russian agent's inquiry by asserting that they are good party members and committed sabotage whenever possible against the Nazis, insist that the 290 are not good Communists and were guilty of defeatist attitudes.

Reds Bar Intervention.

An inspection of the Russian prisoners seems to establish that most are simple peasants ignorant of politics.

Most have a full realization that punishment awaits them on repatriation but they can appeal to no one to keep them from being sent to Russia. The Kremlin viewpoint is that a Russian is a Russian regardless of the uniform he wears and is subject to the laws of the soviet union, and it does not permit any intervention by allied authorities.

CORCORAN TAKES BEATEN SENATOR AS LAW PARTNER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—Thomas G. [Tommy the Cork] Corcoran, former White House intimate and the capital's leading lawyer-lobbyist, is entering a legal partnership with Sen. Clark [D., Idaho], defeated in the recent election, Clark said tonight.

Corcoran has played a lone hand since he left government service several years ago, announcing he was going to make a million dollars, an ambition popularly reported to have been realized some time ago.

The new firm is expected to specialize in South American business. Corcoran has important Latin American connections.

TESTIFIES BORIS WENT TO WAR ON 'STRANGE ADVICE'

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 30 [Delayed]—(AP).—Boris, Bulgaria's dead king, was a physically frail and "easily influenced" mystic who guided his country into war on the strange advice of a counsellor. This is part of the testimony at the Bulgar war guilt trials at Sofia, the Turkish Anadolu agency reported today.

Yordan Lulchev, one of Boris' counsellors, made the assertions about the king, who died mysteriously after being summoned by Hitler.

Examines Handwritings.

He said the other counsellor, a professor named Danov, was head of a sun worshipping cult and a back to nature sect before becoming adviser to the monarch. After attaining power, he decided upon the abilities of Bulgar ministers by examining their handwriting.

The trial record was reported as showing that Boris never made an important decision, wrote a major speech or took a journey without the advice of Lulchev, backed by Danov.

Testifies King Tried Suicide.

Lulchev testified that Boris twice declared he wanted to commit suicide, the Turkish agency reported, once after a soviet protest over entry of German troops into Bulgaria, again after Germany's military position became hopeless.

The court is expected to investigate shortly the diary of Bogdan Filov, former premier and now regent. The diary contains a detailed account of Bulgaria's slide into Germany's grasp between 1941 and September of 1944.

HUNT APARTMENT THIEVES.

Police last night were searching for thieves who entered apartments of John Trcka and Caspar Jelinek, at 2323 a. Hamlin av., New Year's eve. A radio, rifle, camera, odd coin collection, and $100 worth of clothing were taken from the Trcka flat. Jelinek's loss included a radio, watch, and $84.

COUNTY GATHERS 200 MILLIONS IN 1944 TAX CHEST

Tax collections in Cook county in the fiscal year that ended Nov. 30 totaled more than 200 million dollars, or 90 per cent of the total levy of $224,416,452, Victor L. Schlaeger, county treasurer, reported yesterday.

He said the collections would have been within 5 per cent of the levy, but many property valuations were lowered after the levy was made, and some of the 50,000 taxpayers whose tax bills were reduced did not pay them until after Nov. 30.

Almost $10,000,000 was collected in delinquent taxes, including $7,195,363 from foreclosure sales. Mr. Schlaeger said $1,500,000 was collected thru Skarda receivership proceedings, and $1,143,576 in delinquent personal property taxes was collected by the levy department. Inheritance taxes amounted to $3,699,124.

F. D. R. MESSAGE AWAITED AS CUE TO AIMS IN WAR

Deference to Russians Piques Interest.

before has an American chief executive been called upon for a more momentous report.

The President is to address congress at a moment when his administration is under fire for its conduct of the war on both the battle front and the home front and for its war diplomacy. He never has made a detailed war report to congress, such as British Prime Minister Churchill makes to parliament several times a year, but this time the President cannot well avoid it without serious repercussions in and out of congress.

Mr. Roosevelt well may describe with pride how the American army invaded western Europe last June and forged thru France to Germany, but the country will be looking for answers to many questions of the present moment involving the competence of the American command which the commander in chief logically may be called upon to answer.

His Third Great Disaster.

Thus Commander in Chief Roosevelt will be looked to for an explanation of the surprise defeat of the American 1st army by German Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's counter-offensive beginning Dec. 16, which with Pearl Harbor and Bataan becomes the third great military disaster sustained under Mr. Roosevelt's conduct of the war.

Whether the surprise of the attack was the result of faulty military intelligence, as at Pearl Harbor, is a specific question on which the commander in chief will be expected to shed light.

Other questions bearing vitally upon the state of the Union are why the British have so few troops on the western front and are doing no fighting; why the Russians are inactive in the Polish sector of the eastern front, the shortest approach to Berlin; and why the Americans are compelled to bear the brunt of the battle.

Light Sought on Teheran.

The President can be most illuminating on these and kindred subjects if he chooses to report with fidelity on the state of the union. Democrats as well as Republicans have been demanding for months that he disclose what commitments he made at the Teheran conference, at which he apparently approved tacitly if not expressly Stalin's program for the dismemberment of Poland.

Mr. Roosevelt also could disclose how he came to cast the deciding vote for a second front in western Europe, tho Churchill opposed it as too costly and urged attacking Germany thru the Balkans. Stalin dismissed the Balkans as of no importance, tho it is thru this region that he now is approaching Germany, a region that he intends to dominate after the war.

The commander in chief also could explain why allied plans failed after the defeat of Germany in 1944 had been charted as so certain that the signal was given for MacArthur's advance into the Philippines with all the man power and ships and weapons and other equipment it would entail.

Here again the defense of the administration is that the plans failed because Stalin refused to attack Germany in the Polish sector until the Poles should yield to his territorial and political demands.

Another subject on which the country will look for information in the message is the Atlantic Charter. The President said it never was signed and sealed but he insisted that it still lives.

As to the shortages of ammunition and other war equipment which are embarrassing our fighting forces, the forthcoming report on the state of the union, if truthful, will be far different from the report in Mr. Roosevelt's campaign speeches, which concealed the facts and asserted that our troops were equipped "down to the last cartridge."

The President is expected to present a program for overcoming shortages of production and man power and dealing with reconversion and other post-war economic and social questions.

MOSCOW, Jan. 1 (AP).—Moscow danced and sang the New Year in with the greatest demonstration of gayety since the war began. ## 1945 ROARS IN LIKE LION; 5 TO 10 BELOW TODAY

Whipping winds and near zero temperatures marked the advent of the New Year yesterday and brought the prospect of still colder weather today.

Forecaster G. I. Canaday said that Chicago temperatures would drop to from 5 to 10 degrees below zero this morning, with as cold as 16 below in some suburbs. And the cold wave, he said, is expected to stay at least for several days.

The highest temperature today will be near 10 above, he predicted, and a light snow may fall tonight and tomorrow. The highest temperature tomorrow may be 18 above, he added.

Winds Will Subside.

He predicted, however, that the bitter winds, which reached a peak velocity of 40 miles an hour yesterday, would subside by this morning.

Shortly before 2 a. m. today surrounding suburbs also reported subzero readings. In Des Plaines the unofficial report said 10 below. Other suburban temperatures were: Homewood, —5; Berwyn, —4; Evanston, —4; Lake Forest, zero; Wheaton, —5; Flossmoor, —5.

The Chicago Motor club received more than a thousand calls for help from motorists from 2 p. m. to 7 p. m. yesterday, and anticipated that thousands of additional calls would be made during the night. The club advised motorists to put a small amount of alcohol in their gas tanks to prevent the gas lines from freezing.

Absenteeism Rises Sharply.

The combination of weather and the New Year's celebration brought a marked increase in absenteeism at major war plants in the area, and reduced attendance at the zoos, conservatories, and museums.

First district police reported that the debris cleanup problem which usually follows New Year's eve in the loop was a minor one this year. But they had a grievance. The high winds kept setting off burglar alarms in loop stores.

Jars Break Electric Circuits.

The alarms are set off when the wind jars open doors, windows, or transoms, and thus breaks the electrical contact.

Railroad and bus stations reported a near normal New Year's day volume of traffic. The weather, they explained, helped keep people home.

A considerable number of Chicago children will henceforth observe their birthdays on New Year's day, but to Baby Schreve, son of Corp. and Mrs. Irene Schreve, 1428 N. Talman av., went the distinction of being 1945's first Chicago baby. He was born at the stroke of midnight in St. Elizabeth's hospital.

The first twins to arrive yesterday, a boy and a girl, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Tony Barassi, 1439 S. Avers av., in St. Anthony's hospital at 10:45 a. m.

Miss Rita Zielinski (left), girl friend of Robert Gumtow, with his mother, Mrs. Lillian Allward, after the sailor shot himself yesterday.

Robert Gumtow, 18, a sailor on leave for the holidays, shot and killed himself yesterday in his home at 1744 Belmont av. An inquest will be held today at 2024 E. 75th st. to determine whether the shooting was accidental or with suicidal intent.

Robert Gumtow.

Gumtow, who was to have departed yesterday to return to the naval base at Boston, Mass., missed the 11:30 a. m. train at Union station. Leaving his mother, Mrs. Lillian Allward, and other relatives at the station, he returned to his home to get $50 he had forgotten. His girl friend, Miss Rita Zielinski, 17, of 3308 Paris av., accompanied him.

When they reached his home, Miss Zielinski told Detective Ray Gillette, he showed her a Spanish pistol he had brought home from Africa. She said he was pointing it at himself and "clowning around" when she left the room. A few moments later she heard a shot. Returning to the room, she found he had shot himself thru the heart.

Gumtow, a former Lane Technical High school student, had been in the navy more than a year and had made five trips overseas.

70 U.S. OFFICERS TOIL AT WARD'S OVER HOLIDAY

Draft Plans to Run Seized Property.

The Montgomery Ward & Co. controversy marked time yesterday, pending a court hearing scheduled for next Monday on a temporary injunction sought by the government to enjoin Ward officials from interfering with army operation.

Sewell Avery, head of the vast mail order organization, 10 of whose properties were seized by the army last Thursday on order of President Roosevelt, did not appear at the company's plant on Chicago av. At his home, he said there was "absolutely nothing new," and added that he plans to return to work today.

The only company employes at the plant, aside from the maintenance and protective staff, were John W. Branch, Avery's secretary, and John Barr, labor relations director, who said they were performing routine duties.

Army Officers Busy.

In the stockholders' auditorium just outside Avery's office, Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Byron and 70 aids worked all day. Lt. Col. A. H. Raskin, public relations officer, said they were "perfecting plans for operation of the business."

The army said that it would begin today erecting partitions in the stockholders' auditorium, a large room with a vaulted ceiling, to provide private offices for various officers charged with the duty of operating the plant.

United States Atty. J. Albert Woll said there was no activity in his office yesterday in connection with the seizure. The only member of the Washington legal contingent left here was Asst. Atty. Gen. Arnold Levy.

Woll said he knew of no immediately contemplated court action, "but if there is it won't be before Tuesday afternoon." He also said he "didn't think" the government would seek a court order to obtain possession of the company's books, which the company has refused to turn over to the army.

Francis Heisler, attorney for the CIO union at Ward's, said Sam Wolchok, international union president, left Chicago Sunday for New York. He said the union will seek a meeting with army officials at the seized plant this week in an effort to have the army place in effect the directives of the war labor board, rejection of which by the company led to its seizure.

High Up!

We have frequently been embarrassed by people asking questions about the Empire State Building, where Schenley has its executive offices. So we concluded we had better do something about it. The facts and figures obtained about this world's-wonder-structure are positively fantastic. No wonder people ask questions! And here we are, and didn't know the answers. Shame on us!

Do you know that the land and building, at the corner of 34th Street and Fifth Avenue, cost $60,000,000; and that the height of the building is 102 stories, which include 22 floors for a mooring mast for dirigibles? The famous observation tower is exactly 80 stories above the street. In a normal peacetime year 600,000 people visit the tower. This was stepped up to a million visitors during war years.

And now that we have you thinking in figures, we find that there are over 25,000 persons (tenants and employees) earning their livelihoods in this towering structure. That's like taking every man, woman and child out of Rochester, Minnesota (1940 census), where the famous Mayo Clinic is located, and housing them all in the Empire State Building. And do you know that 55,000 persons visit the offices in this building daily and that the OPA, the ODT and WPB, employing approximately 5,000 workers, have offices here.

If you are interested in building construction, hearken to this: 10,000,000 common bricks were used in building this tall-storied edifice; and 1,500 trades were represented at the peak of construction, when the payroll reached about $250,000 weekly!

Schenley is proud of its "home" in the world's greatest building. We're tempted to build a "commercial" out of that, but we just won't do it.

GEN. DE GAULLE REVIVES FRENCH NEW YEAR LEVEE

BY ROBERT SAGE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

PARIS, Jan. 1.—Gen. de Gaulle was this morning for the first time the central figure of the traditional ceremony during which the entire diplomatic corps in Paris offers its New Year's wishes to the chief of the French republic.

The last such ceremony was held on New Year's day, 1940, when President Albert Lebrun received foreign diplomats at the Elysees palace.

This morning in the huge salon of the war ministry, where an official lunch recently was given in Prime Minister Churchill's honor, diplomats of the allied nations and other ambassadors, ministers, charges d'affaires, and military attaches took the places assigned them by protocol.

Papal Nuncio Speaks.

The dean of the diplomatic corps, Msgr. Angelo Roncalli, papal nuncio who had presented his credentials an hour earlier, conveyed the greetings of his colleagues in the name of their governments.

"Due to your political clairvoyance, this cherished country has regained its liberty and its faith in its destiny," the scarlet robed papal envoy told De Gaulle. "France is thus again taking its traditional physiognomy and the place to which it is entitled among the nations."

Praises French Ideals.

"Amid the trials which you have evoked," he said, "France has been able to show once again in this war, thru her efforts and sacrifices, her unswerving fidelity to liberty, to right, to justice, and to respect of the human person, that her sons and daughters are showing by serving the motherland. From this ideal she draws the strength and determination to crush out tyranny. From this victory must emerge a better world. Assured of free and pacific development, peoples will finally be protected against enterprises of violence. France is again assuming her legitimate place in the concert of nations, and pledges herself to turn to account all resources of her genius and power in order to contribute to the establishment of that real peace which all men of good will desire."

Quick, Officer! Which way to the fire department?

SLAIN GAMBLER LINKED TO GAS BLACK MARKET

A nation-wide ring involved in black market operations in gasoline was being investigated by police and federal agents last night in connection with the slaying earlier in the day of Mike Dooman, 37, north side gambler and racketeer.

Mike Dooman.

The gambler was shot by three gunmen in Johnson's Cocktail lounge at 938 Belmont av. shortly before 6 a. m. yesterday while 10 patrons and employes looked on. The killers fired six bullets into Dooman as he sat talking to acquaintances and then fled.

After the shooting John Warren, deputy chief of detectives, and Capt. Frank Reynolds of the Town Hall station found counterfeit coupons for 400,000 gallons of gasoline in Dooman's home at 3538 Reta av. The investigators said the coupons were worth from $20,000 to $25,000 on the black market.

Coupons Lacked Serial Numbers.

The investigators also said the coupons, found in sheets in a box, were complete except for lack of serial numbers. Because of this fact, police believe Dooman may have worked directly with the actual counterfeiters.

The coupons were identified as C-5 issue counterfeits. Paul Tamillo, an agent for the United States currency protective division of the treasury department, took charge of them.

Three recently used drinking glasses found in Dooman's room were being examined for finger prints.

Capt. Reynolds said the gambler had been associated with East St. Louis gangsters. Police pictures of gunmen from that city were shown to witnesses of the shooting. Several of Dooman's known underworld associates were being sought.

Shot in Previous Quarrel.

Police believe Dooman was slain because he quarreled with his confederates over the sale and proceeds of the coupons. Three years ago he was shot after a quarrel with East St. Louis racketeers in a Terre Haute, Ind., hotel. They were returning from the Kentucky Derby at the time.

Police said they were not overlooking a possibility that Dooman was killed because of his interest in the Greek dice game known as "Barboot," which has become popular in several areas in the city in the last two years and in which it is said thousands of dollars are wagered nightly. Dooman, a Persian, was said to have a financial interest in one or more gaming places.

The gambler, sent to Joliet in 1929 for robbery and paroled in 1934, had been arrested several times since for investigation. Police last night were questioning Carl Johnson, 37, owner of the tavern; his bartender, Andrew Fausk, the "2¢ dice" girl, Miss June Chapman, 19, of 3118 Broadway, and two patrons. None knew the identity of the slayers.

Showgirl Wed

CAPRICE CAPRON.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1 (AP).—Caprice Capron, 18, night club entertainer, and Edward G. Howard, 33, retired accountant, formerly of Chicago, were married last night at Wilshire Methodist church by Dr. Willsie Martin, pastor. A number of Miss Capron's show girl friends attended. Miss Capron testified as one of the accusers of Capt. Morrison Wilkinson Jr., army air forces flyer, when he was court martialed and sentenced to prison on morals charges early last year.

$400 THEFT IN APARTMENT.

H. C. McCollum, a mining engineer, was at a New Year's party with his wife, Edith, when burglars entered their apartment at 6735 Oglesby av. and stole three watches and a .32 caliber revolver, all valued at $400, he told police yesterday.

HOME FOLK JOIN IN A TRIBUTE TO LLOYD GEORGE

Rejoice in Elevation to Earldom.

TY NEWYDD LLANYSTYMDWY, North Wales, Jan. 1 (AP).—Children, oldsters, and lots of people in between the extremes came to Ty Newydd today to rejoice with David Lloyd George in his earldom. Lloyd George, premier in World War I., was elevated to earldom on the king's New Year's honors list.

From early morning on, hundreds of congratulatory messages poured in from all parts of Britain and abroad. The telephone bell rang continuously.

Old folk, veterans of old wars, farmers, tradesmen, and grand dames, all scarcely able to express themselves except in their native Welsh, turned out even if it meant walking miles. Many of these folk grew up with Lloyd George. All were eager to be among the first to voice good wishes.

Children Get New Coins.

Children came in groups or if they were too young they were shepherded along by their parents. In keeping with custom they collected a new year's gift. In their finest clothes they gathered around Lloyd George and his wife and each child received an apple, grown in the venerable statesman's orchard, and a bright new shilling.

When they could call the time their own the Lloyd Georges strolled thru their farm, visited in the village of Llanystymdwy and then rested along the banks of the River Dwyfor. It is from the river that Lloyd George has taken his new title—Earl Lloyd George of Dwyfor.

Visited by Two Daughters.

During the day Lloyd George was visited by his two daughters, Megan, member of parliament from Anglesey, and Mrs. Carey Evans.

Toward sundown the family went to a children's meeting at the rugged Beriah Baptist church at Criccieth, of which Lloyd George has been a life long member.

SOLDIERS HELD IN SLAYING AT ST. PETERSBURG

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 1 (AP).—Police announced today that two soldiers had been turned over to MacDill field authorities for further questioning in connection with the slaying of Andrew Schwartzott, 64, former Saginaw, Mich., rural mail carrier.

Schwartzott, missing since Thursday, was found dead in a clump of bushes less than 50 feet from the St. Petersburg city museum last Saturday. He had been shot thru the back.

Police found Schwartzott's car over the week-end but said it yielded no clews.

NOTIFY SCHOOLS OF REFUSAL TO AID N. E. A. PROBE

All Chicago public school principals and district superintendents this morning will receive two copies of a recent board of education resolution refusing coöperation with a committee of the National Education association in a current investigation of personnel management in the city schools. One copy will be posted on a bulletin board in each school.

The resolution said the investigation "finds its inspiration with certain local groups whose declared purpose has been to discredit the organization of the Chicago public school system." It declares that Chicago schools have made "tremendous improvement" in the last few years in finances, physical structure, and educational standards, that the N. E. A. represents only a minority of Chicago teachers, and that the investigation will be "harmful to the present satisfactory operation of the schools."

WASTE IN WAR.

Not all the waste of war results from losses in battle. It was acknowledged even before the Von Rundstedt offensive began that our armies on the western front were sadly lacking in a great many categories of arms, ammunition, and other equipment. Now the Germans assert that quantities of American equipment have been captured or destroyed. The American 1st army will probably have to be refitted in large degree.

It was reported in an Associated Press story from the German border, before the Nazi offensive began to roll, that the deplorable state of preparation then existing was "due to short sighted and optimistic planning in Washington, D. C." The most recent report on surplus war property made by Sen. Mead, chairman of the special committee to investigate the national defense program, provides an illuminating commentary on this judgment.

During the recent political campaign it was the custom of the commander in chief and others to acclaim their own foresight and planning genius in accounting for what was called the triumph of production. There isn't the slightest reason for doubting that the production lines were rolling along full blast, but were the right things coming off them? Evidently not, according to Sen. Mead.

It has been estimated that ultimately the surplus property board will sell between 15 and 103 billion dollars' worth of surplus war property. No accurate approximation of value can be made, because no one can say what prices the material will command on the market, and no one in the New Deal wants to hazard a guess anyway, because to do so would be to disclose the appalling waste that has attended the war program. The only conclusion advanced is that there will be so much surplus property that to dump any category of it on the market at once would be to break the market for that item.

"These surpluses," says Sen. Mead, "will constitute one of our major post-war economic problems. It is estimated that from 60 to 65 per cent of our surpluses will be so purely military in character as to be unsalable for civilian use.

"The committee has found the military very loathe to declare surpluses. It believes that considerably more material should have been declared surplus than has so been declared to date.

"Some surpluses will be unavoidable. Others, however, could have been prevented or minimized. . . . The objective will be accomplished only thru substantial improvement in the performance of the various supply functions, such as buying, warehousing, and inventory control, so that an equally good, or possibly even a better, job of military supply can be done with smaller inventories."

This statement seems to sum up to the fact that there has been very loose planning both on the part of the army supply service, which is directed by an officer whose principal pre-war reputation was made as WPA administrator of New York City, and by the war production board, presently under the chairmanship of a TVA burocrat. The pre-war service of both was with notoriously improvident federal agencies, and they seem to have carried their habits over into the war jobs.

The fact that surplus war material is piling up over the land while the troops on the fighting fronts are short of the material they need for the actual fighting would seem to lead to the conclusion that our procurement policy has simply been to procure, procure, procure, whether the material procured was going to be serviceable or not. Thus a good part of the production miracle has been waste motion consuming time, material, factory space, machines, and a labor force that becomes more shorthanded by the day.

Sen. Mead has submitted considerable evidence in verification of this view. Among other causes of surpluses, he listed: failure to forecast requirements correctly; failure to standardize specifications; failure to stop making obsolete equipment after models had been changed; duplication of procurement programs; procurement which has been "poorly timed, indirect, and poorly controled"; keeping production lines going where adequate stocks are on hand, for the sole purpose of having productive capacity available at a future time when greater demand is anticipated; failure to develop and utilize interchangeable information; failure to recognize and declare as surplus useless accumulations of obsolete material; and, finally, "other failures and inefficiencies in the various successive functions comprising the supply pipe line."

Does this report, made after election, bear out the boasts of the commander in chief that his planning and management were nothing short of inspired?

PERMANENT BASES.

The fact that the government is finally taking steps to retain some of the war time bases granted to the United States by foreign nations is encouraging, even if its initial negotiations, with Ecuador, have so far not attained success. We now have an air base at the inland city of Salinas and naval and air facilities in the Galapagos Islands, which lie 620 miles off the coast and are invaluable as a screen for the Panama canal. A loan has been offered for retention of these bases, but the Ecuadorian assembly apparently is still unsatisfied with the quid pro quo.

Mr. Stettinius' new state department has an opportunity in these negotiations to demonstrate whether it will be able successfully to champion American interests. Ecuador was quite willing to grant us bases when danger was close, but it seems not to have been made aware that this war will not insure the safety of the hemisphere in perpetuity. A nation of its size depends upon the Monroe Doctrine and American forces for survival, and even if, as in most Latin American countries, revolution is likely to promote a change of regime every so often, Ecuador should realize that its enduring interest is to keep the nation safe from outsiders. Some plain speaking from the state department would be justified.

Our government's interest in acquiring permanent base rights, however, cannot be confined to Latin America. A Chicago congressman, William A. Rowan, who has just returned from the Pacific, stated the plain facts when he said, "The only manner in which the United States can be the greatest force in the preservation of the peace is by holding all bases it conquers in the Pacific. If we restore them to their original owners, we cannot even be sure that warfare will not break out anew."

The rule will apply not only to the islands Japan fortified in violation of its league of nations mandate, but to other bases which the Japanese took with ease from some of our allies. When the Japs arrived, most of the defenses were not even second-rate. They were tenth-rate.

The Japanese had much more energy and judgment than the prior owners. They quickly developed most of their seizures into serviceable and defensible bases—how defensible may be judged from the high losses suffered by Americans in winning back such an atoll as Tarawa, which had never been improved during years of British stewardship. But once these bases were in American hands, we developed them as far beyond what the Japs had done as the Japs had exceeded their development under prior owners. We have a great investment in blood and treasure in them all.

The army and navy are already in possession. They should be told to retain these bases for our future safety. Otherwise, we shall have the same job to do all over again on another day.

MORE AND MORE MONEY.

The amount of money in circulation now exceeds 25 billion dollars, a record. The gain in the year was over 5 billion dollars, following an expansion of 5 billions in 1943, 4 billions in 1941, and 2½ billions in 1940. At the crest of the boom in 1929 the total money supply amounted to 4½ billions, and there had not been much variation for more than a decade. Now there is five and one-half times as much money in the hands of the people as there was in the great 1929 boom.

Herein lies the explanation of the excesses of spending which went on just before Christmas. One of our staff saw a woman buy $105 worth of shirts and neckties. A woman in a hurry asked a salesgirl to pick out a dozen of the latest boogie-woogie phonograph records. A shopper asked the price of a shoe shine outfit like the ones heroes carried in the early parts of the Horatio Alger books. Upon being told that it was $15 she said, without hesitation, she would take six. A man bought three $64 pen and pencil sets. At an ultra-fashionable candy shop, bowls filled with chocolates were sold for $80 a copy.

The increase in our money supply is a result of the expansion in government spending of borrowed money, especially money borrowed from the banks. The banks receive the bonds from the treasury and credit the proceeds to the government deposit account. The government then draws on its balance to pay for some airplanes, and thus the money created by the banks writing up their deposits gets into circulation. Less of the money paid out gets back to the banks than formerly, because there are fewer banks and the interest on savings has been cut by more than one-half.

Right after the war started in 1939 there was a demand for American money for hoarding, both abroad and among nationals of other countries here. That was reflected in the issue of bills of large denominations, that is, $1,000, $5,000, and $10,000 bills. The requirement that Germans, Italians, and Japanese register their assets here was followed by a drop in the $5,000 and $10,000 issues, but the number of $1,000 bills remained stationary until early 1943. Since then the issue of currency in denominations from $50 to $1,000 has soared. This increase in the kind of bills the average man ordinarily never sees has been credited to the expansion of the black market in many kinds of commodities.

If the large expansion in currency had been accompanied by a flight of prices or had occurred while business was stagnant, it would be a cause for immediate alarm. But bank deposits have risen in a year about five times as much as money in circulation. The expanding currency is not by itself inflationary. It is only a phase of a generally expanded condition created by government spending in excess of income.

Increases of 5 billion in a year in currency and 25 billion a year in bank deposits are possible in war time without producing an explosion. Important figures in the New Deal believe that deficit spending should be carried on without restraint in time of peace in order to provide jobs for every one. Further increases in currency after the appeal to do without and to buy bonds has passed cannot have anything but tragic consequences. It is to be hoped that when the war is over men of the type of Henry Wallace will not have an important say in government policies.

CHANGE OF CLIMATE.

Snow on the streets and roofs since Dec. 10 without a thaw; night temperatures often dropping to zero or below; caps and ear muffs common among the creatures of the boulevard; stadium boots in style for the sleek ankled sex—all these are signs that the climate of Chicago has changed again. It has returned to the old fashioned winter, after many years of green Christmases.

* * *

This arctic prelude to the customary rigors of January and February is reminding veteran citizens of the winters of the 1890s and earlier. Those were the days when every home had an overworked snow shovel which kept father and the boys in the pink of condition; when 16-ounce weaves were standard suitings for business wear, and buffalo hides were respected as blizzard busters.

* * *

Then there came a gradual softening and shortening of the winters, with occasional reminders of the glacial era. Comforts improved also; street cars ceased to be moving refrigerators with straw on the floor to prevent toes from dropping off, and steam heated flats accommodated thankful refugees from the coal pile in the basement of the six-room house. Ankle height shoes went out of fashion, and dapper chappies boasted that they were hardier than their fathers because they wore summer underwear thru the winter.

* * *

But perhaps the wheel of nature has turned full circle. Anyway, the Canadian or New England type of winter has hopped off the Christmas cards right into the civic lap. We expect that Chicago's sophisticates will soon be complaining that their weekly New Yorker doesn't carry advertising for red flannel underwear.

WHEN WINTER REIGNS.

When winter reigns and winds blow cold,
And visions perish in the mold,
When summer's beauty is no more
And autumn seems a dream of yore,
When yards and fields no longer hold
Bright galaxies of pink and gold,
And sights for memories are sold,
What is there that can joy restore—
When winter comes?

O, there are blessings manifold:
Old friends with faith and love untold;
And books of dear and varied lore;
By hearthfires, stories by the score—

A Wild Night on Main St.

Today there are no weeklies similar to the "family story papers" of the '80s. Who remembers the Fireside Companion, New York Weekly, Family Story Paper, or the Boys of New York? Because of their popularity, Monday was "story paper night" in our town.

After the 6 o'clock supper the regular readers gathered around the book and news counters. Chewing tobacco and arguing over Paine and Ingersoll, they'd await the weekly shipment from the Western News company at Cincinnati and the eastern publishers. Picked up at the evening trains, the packages were rushed to the uptown book stores with wild west gusto by the young messengers of the express companies.

Hearing the distant clatter of the wagons, the group in our place would turn their attention to the front door as Splint, the store boy, ran out to receive the bundles. Galloping up Main st. past the Grand hotel, he'd see the big gray horse of the Wells Fargo Express reacting his fire engine days—hoofs and wagon tires striking blazing sparks from the cobbles as the driver stood up to lash his horse with the rein ends. That'd be Splint's friend, Sodapop Woodward, who fancied himself a famed Wells Fargo messenger with the redskins hot on his trail when it was just the other messengers trying to catch up.

"Ki-yi-ing" like a cowboy, Sodapop would bring his rig to a crashing stop that put accordion pleats in the whole outfit. Tossing his packages to Splint, he'd start his panting steed with a coyote yell echoing back from the courthouse. Then he'd be off to Jordan's cigar store at the town pump.

With Sodapop and his rivals of the American, United States, and Adams Expresses going good, a medicine show at the corner of 8th, and maybe a couple of runaway farm teams along Main st., a stranger could think "Quakertown" a right busy place.

LISBON BEFORE D-DAY.

I think of Lisbon with its Black Horse square,
Its old world streets, the dark-haired Portuguese,
The yellow Tagus, mingling with the fair
And amber-violet waters of the seas;
The white-walled houses, red-tiled roofs, and flowers
King Manuel watched from Cintra's lofty towers
Vasco da Gama's ships come into view.
I think of Lisbon as I saw it when
Its Avenue of Liberty was trod
By natives, not by throngs of war-tired men
Seeking a refuge, praying man and God
For passage from that only port left free

If you supply the required evidence, your allowance will be effective from date of application to the date of his promotion.

DON'T LET YOUR BABE SMOTHER.

WE cannot read our newspapers without coming to the conclusion that the accidental suffocation of infants is on the increase. Between 70 and 80 per cent of these unnecessary fatalities occur among those who are less than a year old. In some communities the total exceeds the death rate from diphtheria or scarlet fever. At one time these latter maladies were looked upon as the chief destroyers of child life.

Most of these accidents occur during the winter months. More night clothing is employed as well as bed covering. Loose pillows, sleeping garments, mattress covers, and blankets are ready culprits. Getting rid of soft pillows alone will save many catastrophes.

We must not forget that the babe is likely to squirm and twist, and many will be discovered with the face buried in the bedding. Soft down pillows, sheets, or flimsy material of any sort can be sucked into the mouth and create an impediment to breathing. Not infrequently the head of the little one will be found completely enveloped. This has come about no doubt by the struggle for air. There is no possibility that the child can remove the obstacles which are hastening the smothering process. The tendency is to turn in such a fashion that the entrance and exit of air is completely shut off.

First of all we can remind mothers that this is a far too common type of mishap. The answer lies in constant supervision. But of greater importance, perhaps, is the avoidance of constricting garments. In other words, activity must be permitted but not to such an extent that tight bands will be drawn about the neck. In fact, collars are unneeded accessories. The yoke of every gown should be wide and loose, devoid of tapes or bands.

More attention should be paid to the crib and we can well afford to discard cushions entirely. The youngster should sleep on a flat mattress, which is covered with a rubber sheet. Over this lies the draw sheet. Both are fastened so firmly and snugly that they cannot be undone or gathered into a wad. If a quilted pad is employed, it too must be tucked in tightly and so adjusted that it cannot be disturbed. Oversheets and blankets should be light and loose enough to permit free movement. Finally, it is dangerous to attach objects to the bars of the crib by means of strings or straps.

When it comes to feeding the infant it is never safe to allow junior to remain in bed alone with the bottle. The trouble is that he may vomit a small amount of the material, some of which may be inhaled. Choking may ensue, and before any one is aware of what is taking place it is too late. If artificial feeding is the rule, the baby should be held in the mother's arms until the interval has elapsed.

While placing the sleeping child in the crib in the prone position is practiced generally, it is safe only so long as some one is constantly on watch. These little ones turn their heads and thus may bury the nose and mouth before we know it. There is no objection to allowing the youngster to rest on his back. While it is desirable to change the posture from time to time, we can avert many a disaster if the face down attitude is adopted only when mother or some responsible person is near.

The chances are that these simple precautions, which have been recommended by a committee of the New York county medical society, will forestall many a tragedy.

Front Views & Profiles

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Justice in the Sand.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1.—The road to justice out here in never-never [meaning never-never-again] land may be as inexorable as it is elsewhere in the nation [altho that is a hotly disputed point], but one certainly proceeds down it at a leisurely pace. It has a beautiful kinship to walking in the sand; for every step forward, two steps backward.

Part of this may be the torpor native to the region. Why do anything today? Tomorrow always comes. Manana, manana, manana—it is a credo interrupted only by such dire dilemmas as the OPA announcement on Christmas eve that all back red and blue stamps were void. The OPA probably thought this foolproof, for Christmas eve was Sunday and the shops presumably were closed. Not out here. The citizens flocked into the markets and stripped every shelf. That was one time when tomorrow could not come.

The tedious pace of local justice, however, is well exemplified in the Chaplin paternity suit. This case, important only because of the name involved, went to trial on Dec. 13. As law suits go, it is a small case. All paternity suits are. Ordinarily it would be a brief hearing. Anywhere except California, even this case would have been brief. Actually it is brief as far as its contents go. The evidence now is all in, but it is very little evidence. It is of the morsel variety. Few witnesses were presented. They testified relatively briefly. Yet the case now goes into its fourth week. Why? Manana, manana.

There are various reasons. For one, court is in session a maximum of four hours a day. Note the word maximum. It convenes with haphazard punctuality at 9:45 a. m. and adjourns at 4 p. m. But in between are assorted recesses, as well as the routine 15 minutes recess each morning and afternoon and the two hour lunch recess, and it may adjourn for the day abruptly because a witness has failed to saunter in or an attorney wants "time to think things over." This may occur [and has occurred] as early as 2:30 p. m.

The case could have been hurried along by Saturday sessions, but such an observation was greeted with outraged indignation. Who wants the case hurried along, anyway? Any week day, too, is good for a recess, such as the entire day taken off because a defense witness, whose testimony when it did come was merely a verbatim echo of that of his two colleagues who preceded him, was ill, or that extraordinary recess for the Friday before Christmas.

"Christmas," the judge declared sagely on the preceding Thursday, "is Monday, so we will now recess until Tuesday so we can have a day off."

This flow of logic is still as clear as milk.

Last Friday every one suddenly looked expectant. The end was in sight. Closing arguments were begun. Ordinarily these are limited by agreement, but not here. "The sky's the limit," the judge declared airily. Even so, it looked for a while as tho, once the arguments were started, the judge would let them proceed without the New Year interruption by letting the court sit late that afternoon and start again Saturday morning, thus effecting a verdict before the year ran out.

The opposite was true. The judge adjourned court in mid-afternoon, wished every one a happy New Year, and said benignly he'd see them all Tuesday. So home they trotted in a state of suspended vituperation.

As is customary in California, the jury is not locked up. The jurors are merely told not to discuss this highly controversial case or read the newspapers, and they float out as free as birds to ride in elevators where all the occupants are bandying opinions, most of them violent, and where enraged club ladies stand on the side lines talking furiously in the hope their remarks will be heard, as they certainly are.

Still, if the California taxpayers do not mind, why should one who is very happy not to be a California taxpayer.

"NATIONAL UNWORTHINESS" IN FRANCE.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Concerning your interesting editorial, "The Crime of National Unworthiness," I hope you will allow me to clarify one point.

The crime of betrayal is a very unusual one and until the last few years occurred infrequently and only in individual cases. "Collaboration with the enemy" is a crime according to the French code and the penalty is usually death.

The cunning German propaganda succeeded in inducing too many people in occupied countries to collaborate with the enemy. The new legislation to which you refer has probably been motivated by the fact that it had become necessary to punish too many people. The application of the law as it stood meant that so many thousands of people would have been condemned to death that the world would have been horror stricken.

The other alternative — acquittal — would be intolerable and this explains to you the human angle of the new law. I am sure that collaborationists who prefer trial under the ancient law could receive satisfaction and be beheaded, but I do not believe that they would like it, and they probably will be very relieved to be simply kept out of politics or public life for a while. May I add that to make a comparison between the Vichy government and the actual government, and to say that "both of them owe their authority in no small degree to the support given by foreign governments and armies," does not seem right to me. It is true that Marshal Pétain could never have remained in power without the help of the Germans, but I daresay that Gen. De Gaulle does not owe his power over the French people to the favor of the United States government.

RADIO MUSH.

Nauvoo, Ill., Dec. 23.—This morning I was listening to the radio to a program of Christmas carols. In the midst of one nostalgic song, the singer pretended he was a soldier fighting in a fox hole far away on Christmas day, and longing for home, etc. Must we, the families of soldiers, be constantly reminded that our boys our homesick? God only knows we are, too! Why can't the sponsors of radio programs omit the sentimentalities. We can supply those ourselves. EILEEN WEBER.

BLAMES THE TAXI MONOPOLY.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—The present taxicab troubles are the natural result of an illegal monopoly-supporting ordinance limiting the number of taxicabs. It is impossible to get a license to operate an individually owned taxicab in the city of Chicago.

The Yellow and Checker companies are both owned and controled by the Checker Cab Manufacturing company. About 1933 the companies succeeded in getting this rotten ordinance passed, under the nome de plume of "public necessity and convenience," which provided that the number of cabs in the city be reduced. The present license setup is as follows: Yellow, 1,500; Checker, 1,000; Negro cab drivers, 400; individual and small companies, 100. This ordinance expires in 1945, so you may expect a drive for its renewal by the "cab trust." With many service men coming back, the cab business will no doubt appeal to many, as it is outdoors and healthful. The returning soldier will also find this ordinance will keep him from going in the cab business. This type of ordinance has been ruled illegal in other states. Preventing an American citizen from making a living as long as it is honest by passing limitation ordinance is un-American and unfair and contrary to all American tradition. DRIVER.

OFFENSIVE.

Skokie, Ill., Dec. 28.—I have just written my brother, who is in his country's service on the European front, the following:

"You fellows over there can all go fishing now, for our commander in chief has just launched his winter offensive and it has Herr Hitler & Co. quaking in their bomb shelters. After a momentous conference with the secretary of war, et al, in order to help settle some post-election obligations, but officially to further the war effort and hasten the defeat of Germany and Japan, he had the army again seize Montgomery Ward.

11 CHICAGOANS WITH 3D ARMY ARE DECORATED

2 Silver Stars, 9 Bronze Medals Awarded.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 3D ARMY IN BELGIUM, Jan. 1.—Two silver stars and nine bronze stars have been awarded Chicago members of the 95th infantry division by order of Maj. Gen. Harry L. Twaddle, divisional commander.

Those given the silver star were: Pvt. Edward S. Slominski, 2139 21st pl., Chicago, A member of the 377th infantry regiment, who heard a noise inside a building during the attack on Metz. He entered and found a German machine gun with a three man squad. The gun was pointing down the street at other elements of Slominski's unit, so Slominski, with pistol in one hand and a grenade in the other, took all three Germans prisoner.

Promoted to Sergeant.

Pvt. Harry F. Ott, 6326 Wood st., a member of the same regiment, since promoted to staff sergeant, carried a heavy machine gun into the streets of Metz and neutralized enemy sniping and machine gun fire which was holding up his company's advance. His action not only demoralized the enemy but gave inspiration to his comrades, the citation states.

Bronze star winners were:

Pvt. Earl L. Wallin, 8339 Oglesby av., who remained at the post of forward radio operator despite heavy enemy machine gun fire from a Metz fort.

Staff Sgt. Henry C. Strom, 3955 Sheridan rd., who served as an artillery observer despite enemy small arms, machine gun, and mortar fire.

Two Quartermasters Honored.

Sgt. William F. Brown, 4113 S. Campbell av., member of the 95th quartermaster company, decorated for meritorious service, as was Sgt. Joseph S. Buday, 4735 Beacon st., a member of the same unit.

Tech. Sgt. John Hein Jr., 3638 N. Hoyne av., of the 795th ordnance company, who kept both American and captured German weapons at a high state of efficiency during the Metz campaign.

Volunteers to Drop Supplies.

Corp. Walter C. Kelly, 6337 Green st., of the 379th infantry regiment, who on four occasions volunteered for the task of dropping supplies from small liaison planes to isolated troops near the Metz forts. These flights were made at 100 foot altitude, exposed to enemy small arms and machine gun fire.

Staff. Sgt. Chester Zellmer, 6134 S. Rockwell st., of the 920th field artillery battalion who, despite heavy enemy mortar and small arms fire, went afoot to a destsroyed bridge and recovered badly needed communications wire cable. The following night, Zellmer directed the laying of two cables across the flooded Moselle river, using a balky motorboat.

A few hours before delivery of the medal, Mrs. Hall received a telegram from the war department. It told her her husband was killed in action over Belgium June 7, adding.

Mrs. Hall and her son, Robert L. Hall Jr., 2, live with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mapes. Lt. Hall's mother, Mrs. June Hall, lives at 2041 Gabriel av., Zion.

BLINDED AIRMAN LED TO SAFETY BY COMRADE'S VOICE

Bits of Jap Shell Hit Flyer's Eyes.

HEADQUARTERS U. S. 14TH AIR FORCE IN CHINA, Dec. 31 [Delayed]—(AP)—His eyes bleeding from imbedded fragments of a Japanese 20-millimeter shell, Capt. John E. Meyer, 26, of Birmingham, Ala., flying a P-51 was guided safely back to his base by the voice and the barely visible wingtip of a comrade in another P-51.

Wing Tip Still a Blur.

Once over his home field, where a flight surgeon stood by to give emergency treatment, Egan talked Meyer down to the runway. The wingtip of Egan's Mustang was still a blur in Meyer's injured eyes.

"Wheels down," Egan said over his radio. Then at the proper moment, "flaps."

Egan made as if to land beside Meyer, then when the wheels of Meyer's plane touched ground Egan pulled up and went around again to land.

Felt No Great Pain.

This happened Christmas morning. Today Meyer is here at the station hospital recovering. The only question is whether his vision will be good enough for him to return to combat flying. An eye specialist picked six metal slivers out of his right eye and nine out of the left eye. His eyes already have healed enough so the bandages could be removed.

Recounting his experience today, Meyer said that when the shell hit the canopy of his plane he looked in the mirror and "what I saw sure scared me."

"I could dimly see blood all over my face," he continued. "I could barely see the instruments in front of me. I pulled up and called to Egan and told him I had been hit. To myself I wondered if this could be it. I felt no great pain but I didn't know I was bleeding quite a bit.

"I told Egan I would head for friendly territory. I couldn't see anything beyond a vague outline of my own wingtips. When Egan came down and joined me I could make out his wing. Then I thought maybe I could make it back.

"Guess I Was Lucky."

"I flew his wing all the way back and we came plenty fast. Egan did a swell job of navigation. I don't think he changed course more than five degrees all the way. We talked about the possibility of my bailing out over the home field but I couldn't see washing out a perfectly good airplane like that. Besides if I bailed out it would take longer to reach a doctor.

"I guess I was lucky."

At a Christmas dinner the night before, Meyer got a Chinese five cent piece which had been baked in a mince pie as a lucky token.

HOW TO GET A PERSONAL LOAN for LESS than usual Small Loan Costs

For a $100 LOAN
At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $20.84
At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 8.00
YOU SAVE $12.84

For a $200 LOAN
At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $39.52
At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 16.00

Why Pay More THAN THIS LOW COST?

SMALL LOAN RATES ARE OFTEN TWO TO THREE TIMES MORE!

Why, for a $100 loan, make 12 payments of about $10.07 each, totalling $120.84 (which is $20.84 more than you borrowed) when at Merchandise Bank a similar loan would cost you only $8—on your signature only. And only $5.50 if with one co-maker.

Here you save at least $12.84 (that you might as well have in your own pocket)—or as much as $15.34, if you choose to have a co-maker. In either case, you SAVE nearly as much as two payments on your loan.

Made Easy For You

If you need a loan—or want to reduce present borrowing costs —there's no need to take time off your job. Simply phone us at Whitehall 4500, or write, and everything can be quickly and confidentially arranged at your convenience.

• Savings shown apply to "signature only" loans repaid in 12 monthly instalments, cost to be deducted in advance. You can save even more if you borrow with one co-maker. In either case, you save at least half of usual and lawful Small Loan Charges.

Ten years have passed since the first "400" left Chicago on its initial run to St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Almost overnight this new train won acclaim. "400 miles in 400 minutes" was soon a by-word. The "dinner-hour run" between Chicago and the Twin Cities became a noteworthy event.

A year and five months later came another forward step—the inauguration of the Minnesota "400." Operating between Mankato and Wyeville, it connected with the Twin Cities "400," providing high-speed service to Rochester, Winona, Mankato, and other Minnesota points.

Then in 1939 came the Diesel-powered lightweight "400" with entirely new equipment. Railroad men from all parts of the country were invited to Chicago to see the train and to ride it. Here, indeed, was the most beautiful train in America!

Finally, came a fleet of "400s." Streamlined and light weight, these Diesel-powered beauties were completed in January of 1942, offering improved service to many cities and towns in Wisconsin, Upper Michigan and Minnesota.

The Famous "400"

—the train that set the pace for the world

We are celebrating the tenth anniversary of the famous "400" here at "North Western." On January 2nd, a decade ago, the train that "set the pace for the world" made its initial run between Chicago and St. Paul-Minneapolis, via Milwaukee.

Thousands thronged the right-of-way as the "400" sped past on its maiden trip—and traveling America soon took this flashing train to its heart. It embodied the triple features of speed, comfort and beauty as never before.

Today the "400" is known throughout the length and breadth of the land. No longer is it one train but a fleet of trains—and daily these gleaming green-and-yellow streamliners glide gracefully from Chicago to serve the transportation needs of Wisconsin, Upper Michigan and Minnesota.

The additional "400" Streamliners that make up the famous Fleet were introduced in January, 1942, soon after Pearl Harbor. They have played a vital part in transporting our armed forces and those engaged in war work—and will continue to do all they can to help speed the day of victory.

★ ★ ★

The second decade of "400" service has now begun. Wartime travel is heavy and there are times when trains are over-crowded. We thank you for your patience and understanding. Our desire now, as always, is to serve our patrons to the best of our ability.

CIVIC, NATIONAL FIGURES MOURN FOR MRS. SIMMS

Condolences Deluge Late G. O. P. Leader's Family.

Civic and political leaders and hundreds of her friends and acquaintances mourned yesterday for Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, who died Sunday in Billings hospital. Their telegrams of condolence deluged the late Republican leader's family.

Her death was regarded by Republicans as a great loss to the country and the party.

Former President Herbert Hoover, in a statement in Pasadena, Cal., said:

"Never was one more devoted to the welfare of the country. Her passing will leave a gap in American life."

Werner Schroeder, Republican national committeeman from Illinois, said:

Early Training Recalled.

"She was fitted for her position of leadership because of her early training in the home of her father, Mark Hanna, and by virtue of her natural intellectual ability.

"Her mind was one of the keenest in the entire party. In her death the party has lost a great leader."

Mrs. Simms was characterized in Washington yesterday by Senate Minority Leader White [R., Me.] as "a woman of independence of thought, great industry, and great courage."

In New York, Herbert Brownell Jr., chairman of the Republican national committee, lauded Mrs. Simms as "one of the outstanding leaders of the Republican party" who "devoted a constant and loyal interest and an unflagging zeal to the party's interest."

Representative Government Loser.

Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.], minority whip, asserted, "We have lost not only one of the most active supporters and a stalwart in the Republican party but a sincere advocate of representative government."

Rep. Fernandez [D., N. M.] said: "Mrs. Simms was a mighty fine woman and I very much regret to hear of her death. It is certainly a great loss to New Mexico."

Mrs. Simms was a former congressman at large from Illinois.

Mrs. Simms' illness after an operation for pancreatitis Dec. 4 in Billings hospital was watched anxiously by leaders of the party to which she had devoted so many years of her life.

Take Body to New Mexico.

Telephone calls were received frequently from former President Hoover, Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former Vice President; Gov. Dewey, Republican candidate for President in the last election, and from many others prominent in both state and national politics, her daughter, Mrs. Katrina McCormick Barnes, said yesterday.

Mrs. Simms' body will leave Chicago today on the Santa Fe Chief for Albuquerque, N. M., where simple services will be held at 3 p. m. Thursday in St. John's cathedral. In the funeral party will be her husband, Albert G. Simms, former Republican congressman from New Mexico; Mrs. Barnes, and another daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Miller of 219 Lake Shore dr. The group also will include several representatives from the Rockford [Ill.] Register-Republican and Rockford Morning Star, which Mrs. Simms published.

FLYER IS KILLED, ENSIGN INJURED IN PLANE CRASH

An enlisted man was killed and Ensign Forest R. Renison, Yuba City, Cal., was injured slightly yesterday when a combat plane from the navy's carrier qualification training unit, stationed at Glenview, crashed in a nursery on Shermer rd., between Waukegan and Dundee rds., in Northbrook.

The name of the enlisted man was withheld by the navy until his next of kin had been notified.

Mrs. N. E. Watson, 1508 Shermer rd., wife of the Northbrook school superintendent, was in her yard when she heard a sputtering motor. Looking up, she saw the plane only a few hundred feet in the air. Richard Burmeister, 1422 Shermer rd., helped remove Ensign Renison from the smashed plane to the Watson home, where Mrs. H. J. Hanscom, a neighbor and nurse, gave the injured man first aid.

Sgt. Rentslejsz, Veteran of Police Force, Resigns

Desk Sgt. Walter J. Rentslejsz, 53, o' the Summerdale station, resigned from the police force yesterday because of ill health. He joined the department Jan. 7, 1921, and became a sergeant Feb. 8, 1940. Eight creditable mentions and three extra compensations are on his record. Rentslejsz, who lives at 2337 N. Lockwood av. with his wife, Marie, said he may move to Arizona.

WIFE ENDS LIFE; WRITES MATE TO WED 'GOOD GIRL'

Just before swallowing a fatal dose of sleeping pills in her second floor apartment at 1039 Adams st., North Chicago, Mrs. Edith Alberta Huff, 37, wrote a note to her estranged husband, Robert, 36, of Rondout, Ill., urging him to marry a "good girl" who would be a good mother to their daughter, Betty, 9.

The husband, a railroad worker, found his wife's body when he called at the house yesterday. North Chicago police said Mrs. Huff had been dead two days.

The Huffs had been separated since October, 1943. Mrs. Huff filed a divorce suit last November charging desertion. She was employed in a war plant. Saturday she sent Betty to the home of a sister-in-law, Mrs. Egar Brown, 110 S. Martin av., Waukegan.

NAME MIDWEST DEAD IN PACIFIC LIMITED WRECK

Ogden, Utah, Jan. 1 [Special].—Service men and civilians from Chicagoland were among the victims in the Sunday crash of two Southern Pacific trains on a fog shrouded causeway thru the marshland near Great Salt Lake, west of Ogden, Utah.

Forty-eight bodies have been removed from the wreckage of the Pacific Limited and 81 counted as injured. At least 28 of the dead were army and navy personnel. Of the injured, 41 are civilians and 40 service personnel.

A Chicagoan, Pvt. William J. Gabriel, 19, of 1114 Wrightwood av., was killed, and his twin brother, Pvt. Joseph G. Gabriel, was reported seriously injured. They are the sons of the William G. Gabriels. Both entered the army in June, 1944, after graduation from Lane Technical High school and were en route to a west coast camp after a holiday furlough home.

Middle Westerners Killed.

Other midwest service men killed included Pvt. Glenn E. Youmans, Kensett. Ia.; Pvt. Robert E. Wieland, Lake View, Ia.; Pvt. Earl Madsen of the 86th infantry at San Luis Obispo, whose father is Lars H. Madsen, route 1, Audubon, Ia.; Gordon N. Roland, C. M. first class, Bayport, Minn.; Joseph J. Zehnle, steward's mate second class, route 2, Long Prairie, Minn.

Among the civilian dead were John Balkius, Grand Rapids, Mich., and four members of one family, Leroy Porter, his wife, Margaret, and their two daughters, Mary and Peggy, all of Sparks, Nev.

Two Sections Collide.

The trains involved were the first and second sections of the Limited, both westbound. The first, in 18 car passenger train with 300 persons aboard, had left Chicago for San Francisco at 10 a. m. Friday. The second section was made up of 20 mail and express cars.

The passenger train had left Ogden 20 minutes ahead of the second section, but had been delayed by a freight train stalled by mechanical trouble. It was running slowly along the causeway leading to the trestle across Great Salt lake when the speeding express section thundered into it.

The engineer of the second train, James McDonald, 64, of Ogden, was scalded to death, but his fireman, M. E. Hardman of Ogden, received only slight injuries.

One report said Hardman observed a warning signal hoisted against the and second sections of the limited, shouted to the engineer.

WATCHMAN, 50, 1ST 1945 VICTIM OF HIT-RUN CAR

Apparently the first victim of a hit-and-run driver this year in Chicago, Richard Cleary, 50, of 1020 S. Cicero av., a watchman, was found dead yesterday in an alley in the 4000 block on Roosevelt rd. His coat was spread neatly over his body, and police said the motorist who struck him may have been taking Cleary to a hospital when he discovered he was dead. Cleary had been employed for 10 years by the Blackhawk Oil company.

Several passengers on a westbound Harrison st. trolley car were jolted yesterday afternoon when a heavy army truck, used by the V-mail unit at 732 Van Buren st., crashed into the front end of the surface lines car at Des Plaines st. and ripped off a portion of the motorman's cab. Neither the motorman, Thomas Murphy, 55, nor any of the passengers reported injuries. Pvt. Julian Boren, 41, who was riding in the truck, suffered a lacerated nose.

Twenty-six persons were killed in traffic accidents in Lake county last year, compared with 28 in 1943, Coroner Garfield R. Leaf disclosed. Three towns in the county went thru the year without a single traffic fatality. They are Highland Park, North Chicago, and Lake Bluff.

Woman Pharmacist, 50, Found Dead in Bathtub

Mrs. Frances Douglass, 50, assistant pharmacist at Augustana hospital, was found dead last night in a water filled bathtub in her apartment at 500 Fullerton pkwy. Her death was discovered after tenants below her apartment investigated when water leaked thru their ceiling. Police found a hypodermic needle near the tub. Whether she drowned or died of natural or other causes could not be immediately established.

GUNSHOT WOUNDS FATAL.

Clifton Sharp, 41, Negro, of 5941 South Park way, died last night in the Provident hospital of gunshot wounds suffered earlier in the day in a fight with an unidentified Negro at 5114 Prairie av.

STREET ATTACKS MARK NEW YEAR FETE IN PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 1.—Jean Koenig, nephew of the military governor of Paris, was among the victims in several street attacks during the first wide open New Year's eve the French capital has celebrated since the beginning of the war.

As Koenig was returning to his Champs Elysees home early this morning he was waylaid by a number of North Africans, who took his coat and identity papers. In a police chase following the attack one member of the gang was captured. He was Tibouchi Larbi, an alleged deserter from the 170th company, stationed in Normandy.

Mothers Urged to Take Time to Enjoy Growing Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Are you busy every minute of the day? So busy that you just don't have a minute to enjoy the children now, but hope some day, when you get caught up with the cooking, cleaning, mending, and almost everything else under the sun, you'll find time to do so?

"Mother, come outside and see what I've found," calls your 4 year old, Jimmy.

"Not just now, dear, I'm too busy," you reply.

Or—"Will you come to school tomorrow afternoon, Mother?" asks your young daughter, a little later in the day. "We are going to have a gym exhibition. Please do."

"Well, Debby, I'll have to see. I've got so much to do tomorrow and I don't know how I can get thru it all if I take the time to go over to the school," you answer with an apologetic smile, hoping thereby to soften the disappointment you see in her eyes.

Are you so busy all of the time—your mind planning ahead and more than keeping pace with your body—too much occupied to realize that this, this very minute, is life, instead of the next one just around the corner?

Are you too much occupied with caring for the children to enjoy them; too much concerned with planning for them to realize the happiness of them as they are now?

If you are, make up your mind to call a halt every once in awhile. Don't let yourself get caught by life so that you'll find yourself saying 10 years from now, "O, I didn't realize how happy I was when the children were little; I was always too busy working and planning. I was always looking ahead to when they would be grown up. Then, I thought, I could really enjoy them. The present always got swamped in the future."

I realize that it isn't an easy thing to do—to make time for your children—but you'll be amply rewarded if you can so arrange your household duties that you have leisure for and with your little children, or your growing up boys and girls.

Thru the Looking Glass

The authorities are now quite well agreed that cleanliness is the greatest of all safeguards against industrial dermatitis which, according to some figures from the United States public health service, is responsible for a greater loss of time than any other occupational disease.

Almost any substance will cause a skin irritation if a person has a sensitivity to it, but aside from these individual idiosyncracies there is a tremendous amount of dermatitis in which ordinary uncleanliness is the greatest predisposing cause.

A good toilet soap and plenty of warm water rank as the best of protectives, and what's true for factory workers is true for all of us. Offices, vehicles, all public places, are inclined to be dirtier now than they were in peace times, when the clean-up squads were able to operate efficiently, and every one of us who circulates at all in this soiled world should be more fussy than ever before about cleanliness. None of us can afford to be disabled by infection.

All of us would be smart to wash our hands oftener, to protect them out of doors with gloves—clean ones—and to scrub up our working space ourselves if necessary. We are reminded of a woman we know who spent a night at a hotel, in a suite which was the only thing available. She spent two hours cleaning it, slept four hours in the bed she'd made up herself, and paid $12.50 next morning for her night's lodgings. But cleanliness, she knows, is the greatest protection to the health that's essential to her livelihood, so she figures it was just another war time necessity.

Rationed Food Supplies Drop, Says OPA Aid

Less meat, butter, and canned foods will be available to civilians in the next three months than at any time since the war started, Rae E. Walters, Chicago regional administrator of the office of price administration, said yesterday.

Food ration stamps will be validated only after supplies have been increased, and this strict rationing control may be held thru the rest of the year, he said.

There will be 15 per cent less rationed and nonrationed meat in the first quarter of 1945 than in December, Mr. Walters said. Civilians will receive 267,000,000 pounds a week this quarter, compared with 281,900,000 pounds a week last month. The per capita allowance is expected to be 127 pounds a year. Pre-war consumption was 126 pounds per capita.

Civilians would buy 170 pounds of meat per capita this year if it were available, it has been estimated.

Butter is the most critically short of all rationed items, Mr. Walters said. Civilian stocks are at their lowest point of the war and must be built up to 45 to 50 million pounds as the necessary minimum to keep stores supplied, he added.

Restaurant managers have announced plans to remove butter from their tables or issue it during restricted hours of the day. Mr. Walters said only 51,600,000 pounds of margarine will be available this month, compared with 56,200,000 pounds in the country last month.

Present stocks of popular canned vegetables, fruits, and juices are about 56 per cent of the supply available a year ago. Civilians received 93 per cent of the 1941-'42 season's canned goods, but their share has been reduced to 59 per cent of the 1944-'45 season's supply.

The next sugar stamp for five pounds, to be validated Feb. 1, will have to last three months, instead of the usual two and one-half months, Mr. Walters said. Civilians will get 5,400,000 tons of sugar this year, compared with 6,100,000 tons in 1944 and 7,350,000 in 1941.

St. Frances' Guild Selects April 9 for Benefit Bridge Tea

Scarcely had the first snowflakes of the season swirled thru the air than members of St. Frances' guild started to think in terms of spring flowers, setting April 9 as the date of the guild's annual benefit bridge tea to raise money for St. Mary's Home for Children at 2822 Jackson blvd. This year Mrs. George White Traver, chairman of the guild's board, will serve as chairman of the party, which will be held in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. Mrs. Haven A. ReQua is president of the guild, and Mrs. Karl K. Jensen, who has held the post of treasurer for a number of years, again will be in charge of tickets for the party. The home is an Episcopal institution for little girls.

Mrs. Ed. T., Chicago—I keep a piece of tile or wood handy in my pantry, where it's easy to reach for it when I have a hot dish to place on my linoleum sink top.

Gracie T., Racine, Wis.—Recently we had our woodwork refinished and we didn't like its high gloss. We made a mixture of linseed oil and powdered pumice and rubbed steadily and evenly with the grain of the wood. Then we wiped off the dust and waxed, and the effect was stunning.

Mrs. J. L., Kansas City, Mo.—If you are a young housewife and remember that your mother always soaked her clothes overnight, keep in mind this procedure is not recommended now. Dirt may be loosened and finely divided and then soaked back into clothes. Then it is hard to remove.

Esther T., Rockford, Ill.—We make artificial snow for branches of shrubs or vines. I mix some starch and water in a large pan and dip the branches in it. Then I sprinkle asbestos snow over the branches, and you'd think they were covered with soft snow. After a few minutes for drying they can be arranged in bowls and are attractive on a table or stand.

Tender Green Gives Dresses Fresh Appeal

BY REA SEEGER.

A new year and a new midseason starts fresh with one of the best eye catching color promotions yet launched. It's the new shade called "limelight," a yellow green, with the green predominating. It's the tender new green of the first spring flowering bushes, so pastel in tint as to fulfill the first hunger for something new for a spring wardrobe or the fresh new color to revive a wilted winter wardrobe. The first printed dresses in rayon crepe or jersey feature this color for a background, and there are hundreds of dress and two piecers of the color without contrast prints.

You'll find stunning sleek line dinner dresses of lime green, some with decorative accent of appliqued bands of the same lime as the dress or with subtle contrasts of raspberry or violet or dull light blue. Stronger contrasts of vermillions or jade green make other models exciting and different, not only in the floor length dinner gowns but in the smartest of day time dresses to wear under fur or fabric coats. Both jersey and crepe are featured in these sophisticated dinner clothes.

Resort clothes for those going south also emphasize this lovely limelight color. Shorts, shirts, play dresses, sports clothes, swim suits, casual coats, jackets and sweaters, blouses, and separate skirts all of lime green provide a new shade with which to lounge under southern sunshine and to bring back north to wear again in the summer. Returning college girls are packing new casual wool dresses, coats, and jackets of this color, along with the newest two piece suits of jersey soft wool or tweed, which also are in lime green. It's a most welcome spring shade.

Shape of Snail Inspires a New French Bonnet

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 1.—Jean Patou has created startling new millinery inspired by pin cushions, waste baskets, butterflies, and snails. A black pin cushion with two large turquoise pins stuck in the top formed one hat shown today. Attached to both sides of the pin cushion were large balls of turquoise green yarn.

Another model resembles a good sized waste basket placed upside down on the head. It is made of plaited brown and banana beige felt. Four inch wide brown grosgrain ribbon encircles the high crown. Multicolored hyacinths appear in front.

Pinks and mauve colored stocks are placed back of the flat crown of a beige silk sailor. In the middle of the flowers is a large, bright feather shooting straight up a foot and a half high. A narrow band of brown petersham [corded ribbon] encircles the crown. Another sailor is made of porcelain blue felt and is lavishly trimmed with wide brown velvet ribbon. The large veil is dotted with tiny velvet balls. Bright yellow sunflowers form the projected crown of a green felt toque while large muscat grapes trim a purple stovepipe hat of heavy ribbed silk.

If his errand had been less urgent Sam might have hesitated to tell it before this unknown visitor, but under the circumstances he blurted out details. "I done heard them talkin', Packard and Uhlmann. Jug is gonna pay him soon as he kills off Webb. I followed them down the canyon to tell you, Miss Sandra."

"No, sir. Jug came down after him. Rhino doesn't know it. Jug is checkin' up on him, looks like." Sam told about the miner coming out of the office on the heels of Uhlmann with a gun covering the killer.

"Not none. But both of them are out to get this Webb."

"No, Bob," she intervened before he could speak. "Sam is our friend. Uhlmann gave him that scar on his forehead. Jim and I know he is all right."

The troubled eyes of Webb shifted to the girl. "Stan may be in the cabin. If he is—"

"You said you didn't sleep in the cabin, but in a hill pocket somewhere back of it," she reminded him.

"Yes, but he was reading that story you lent me when I left. He may not have gone from the cabin yet."

Jim Budd was in the doorway. Sandra turned to him. "Get the boys in the bunkhouse. Tell them to saddle fast. I wish father was at home. But anyhow there are five of the boys in the bunkhouse."

"Five minutes is as long as five hours sometimes." As he looked at her the harshness died out of his face. "Don't worry about me. I'll be careful."

She did not trust his promise. He would be careful only if recklessness was not necessary to save his friend.

He kissed her, smiling into her troubled eyes. The assurance he gave her had nothing to do with his danger, at least not on the surface. Spinning her gently out of the way, he strode from the room.

Fraser grew tired of reading. This novelist Dickens was all right, but he sure was a word-slinger. The folks who read "Dombey & Son" must have had more time to burn than a sheepherder. He yawned deeply, stretched and looked at his watch. A quarter to ten.

Stan grinned. That young Bob was getting a break at last, after a lot of lean years. Uhlmann was a fugitive. With evidence piling up against Packard as it was, looked like he might go to the pen instead of Bob. On top of that, young Webb had won the nicest and best looking girl in the county.

The oldtimer blew out the light and sauntered from the cabin. Stan untied the horse he had left at a post and stood at sharp attention. He had heard the hoof of another horse strike a stone. A bullet whistled past his ear.

Another gun sounded. "Two gents hunting," he said aloud and started for an arroyo 50 yards away.

The pony staggered, lost its footing and plunged to the ground, badly wounded by the last shot. Fraser landed on his shoulder and was for a moment stunned. He heard a triumphant yelp. It was too late now to get the rifle. He ran for the arroyo. Fortunately the moon had gone under a cloud. Tho one of his attackers fired again, he reached the arroyo safely. Up this he raced to a boulder pile below the rim rock of the ridge.

Among the rocks was a scatter growth of cholla and prickly pear. Fraser realized that if he lay crouched here he would neutralize the advantage held by the attackers. Their rifles would be of no more use than revolvers at short range and they would have to creep up close to dig him out from the rocks. Lucky for him it was a night battle.

What worried Stan was not his own situation but that of his friend. In 30 minutes, or an hour, or maybe two, Bob Webb would come along anticipating no danger and ride into an ambush. By a near miracle Fraser had escaped the first blast, but the killers would make sure of their victim next time.

Stan was trapped. He could not climb the sheer rock wall behind him, nor could he expose himself on either rim of the arroyo, for the clouds had been swept away and the moon shone bright over the desert. But he might be able to give Bob a warning, at a considerable risk to him, by firing shots at intervals. If he could keep this up long enough, Bob would hear and be on the alert.

Fraser fired toward the mouth of the pocket and scuttled thru the brush to the shelter of a boulder 10 or 15 yards distant. As he had expected, two explosions sounded so close to each other that the second seemed almost an echo of the first. He settled down in his new place, watching to make sure the enemy were not stalking his cover. He was a cool customer, with nerves and muscles coördinated perfectly.

A ruse to lessen the risk occurred to him. He picked up a bit of quartz and flung it against the face of a boulder 20 yards from his shelter. The guns of the ambushers sent bullets whistling up the draw in the direction of the sound. The oldtimer chuckled. He had lured them into giving the warning without having to do it himself.

Stan knew he was in a tight spot. His assailants could not wait till morning to get him. He felt sure that they were taking advantage of the cover and of the darkness to move closer to him. But he was less distressed about this than about Bob's reaction to the warning of the shots. Webb would be alarmed at the danger of his friend and might come charging forward without taking any precautions.

A rustle in the bushes a stone's throw distant, so faint that only keen hearing could have detected it, told Stan that one of his enemies at least was working nearer thru the brush.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

It takes more planning to prepare 21 meals a week on a restricted red and blue point budget. Whether we like it or not, we homemakers are going to have to serve fish, poultry, eggs, and dried beans more frequently to help out the protein part of the diet. There still are some no point meats, and quite a few low point ones, but they're not family favorites by any means.

Even our breakfast bacon now takes 4 points a pound, and sausage 2 to 6 points. We'll have to make these meats stretch like pre-war rubber.

Twenty-four point butter now is an impossibility for most stamp budgets. There hasn't been a stick of butter in my house for several months, but nobody has missed it because of the fine quality margarines which have been obtainable.

Some Point Free Meats.

Veal: Heart, sweetbreads, tongue, breast [good for stuffing, rolling, and braising, for mock chicken legs or veal loaf], shank, patties made from shank, riblets [for stew].

Meats for One or Two Points.

For one or two red points a pound, you may obtain any of these;

That's a pretty skimpy listing, but in some markets it is possible to buy low grade veal or lamb without points. Even the lowest grades of beef now are rationed.

Fish with which we can console ourselves include lake trout, whitefish, oysters, jumbo shrimp—all high priced, I'm afraid. Less expensive are buffalo fish, chubs, suckers, haddock fillets, rosefish, cod, pollock fillets, smaller shrimp, frozen halibut, and frozen salmon. Carp and sheepshead are the budget fish.

Letters from both the east and the west keep the junior Carter H. Harrisons posted on the recent activities of their widespread family. Their eldest daughter, Mrs. Kevin B. McLoughlin, is living in Pasadena, Cal., with Mrs. L. Edward Hart, while both their husbands are on duty with the navy overseas. Miss Edith Harrison corresponds from England, where she is stationed with the Red Cross. Her two younger sisters, Carolyn and Joan, are also busy with war work, for their they have positions at Great Lakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius C. Towle's daughter, Martha Jane, is serving as a Red Cross staff assistant in a rest camp in England. Miss Towle had hoped to arrange a meeting with her brother, Corp. Philip M. Towle of the marines, when she received her overseas assignment, but he is stationed in the South Pacific.

Service Notes.

Lt. Leslie Wheeler of the navy has gone to San Francisco, Cal., for further orders following a 28 day leave here with his mother, Mrs. Clarence Prentice, and Mr. Prentice, Lt. Wheeler had spent more than two years in the South Pacific, where his brother, Capt. Henry Wheeler, still is stationed with the marine corps. Capt. Wheeler recently was promoted to his present rank.

The Andrew McNallys have said both "hello" and "good-by" to two of their sons in the last few months. Lt. Ward McNally, home on a 30 day leave after more than two years in the Pacific, just missed seeing his brother, Maj. Frederick McNally, who recently left for duty overseas. Lt. McNally now has reported to the west coast. A third son, Capt. Andrew McNally III., is stationed with the army in St. Louis, Mo., where his family is living with him.

A change of navy orders has taken Clay Judson Jr. to Los Angeles, Cal., where he is receiving further training as a radio operator. A seaman first class, he formerly was stationed at Great Lakes near the Lake Forest home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Judson.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 1.—"Morgan's Folly," starring Frank Morgan, will include Irene, the famous designer, who'll play herself. When she appears on the screen in one of her own creations, I'm wondering how many fans will bid for it. . . . Little Jackie Jenkins, so good in "National Velvet," was asked what he wanted to be when he grows up. He said, "I'm going to train elephants and travel with a circus. This acting job is too wearing." . . . The first character Constance Bennett cast, besides herself and Gracie Fields, in "Paris Underground" was her own poodle. Now the question is, will Constance the producer and star collect money on Prancel the pooch? . . . Ann Sheridan got her present from Warners for the New Year—she was suspended. . . . Who was it wrote that Warners wouldn't be allowed to speak of God in "Four Men of God" because the Hays office won't allow the use of that word? How about "God Is My Co-Pilot." and "God's Country and the Woman"? . . . The Mexican government invited David Selznick down on a goodwill tour in February. Unable to make it at that time, David expects to go come spring, because "Since You Went Away" portrays the American home front, and the picture's expected to make a profound impression on Latin Americans.

Mr. Kildare in the Philippines.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore [parents of Lew Ayres] wrote me such a charming letter, enclosing two Christmas cards from Lew, one a photo of him behind a makeshift pulpit with a crude cross. He wrote, "Hello, Dad, here's to you and to us both together again." And on the back added, "Look at that silly grin. The reason is this: While I was speaking, this unit's photographer leaned in the window and spent five minutes focusing and jittering about until I finally stopped dead and said, 'You may as well get everything set as you want it and shoot, because it's useless for me to pretend that I don't know you're there. I can smell a camera a mile off.'" . . . The other was a photograph of a beautiful Spanish church on which he wrote, "Christmas greetings from the Philippines. The arrow points to my home on the balcony. Thought you might like to see where we are. Wish you were here or I there. The tower on the right is my special private study and prayer corner. Also my lookout over the land. No, I do not play with the bells. Love—Lulie" [his pet name in the family]. . . . Because his parents missed my "Hats Off" to him Christmas day, I'm having a special recording of it sent them. His father wrote me, "I wanted you to see our Christmas cards from him. Now how can I politely say, 'I'd like them back, please.'"

Unusual Weather Out Our Way.

The other night a bolt of lightning struck Tony Moreno's tall palm trees in front of his house and nearly blew Tony into the wild blue yonder. The trees caught fire, and had it happened a few hours earlier, it would have made a dazzling spectacle for the opening of "Winged Victory" at Chinese theater. Tony was blown clear out of bed, and when he recovered, appeared on the street clad only in the bottom of his pajamas, but carrying a box of his favorite cigars. That's all he could think of saving. But the house did not burn. . . . Chill Wills will continue bossing Robert Walker in "What Next, Corporal Hargrove?" It's amusing that our army recognizes Hargrove's ability and has already upped his rank to lieutenant, before Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer does it in pictures. Most times it's other way 'round.

Gayety Plus at the Hopes.

The Bob Hope open house went on into the night. The highlights were Jimmy Durante and partners. They trotted out all their old acts, and Hope wasn't heard while they were holding forth. The other was a quartet supposedly of Bing Crosby, Bob, Jerry Colonna, and Frances Langford, but Bob was busy elsewhere, so Bing sang both parts in "If I Had My Way." At song's end, Bob appeared in the doorway with one of those silly Lloyd Hamilton hats, tipped it, and walked out of the room taking the bow. I've rarely seen Clark Gable laugh so hard.

Ran into Fritz Lang at a Beverly hotel the other day. With him were three kids, the oldest a girl of 14. I looked my surprise and finally got out of him that the three children had been forgotten by their parents and turned over to a relative as guardian. Fritz gave himself a happy holiday by calling on the kids, buying them new clothes and presents, dining them, and showing them Hollywood. . . . Arthur Freed and Harry Waring finished their sixth song for "Yolanda and the Thief." The ballad titled "Candlelight" falls to Fred Astaire. . . . Bob Graham, good looker from "Duffy's Tavern," warbles in "Week-End at the Waldorf."

There is not very much to the technique of the crossruff. The important point is to diagnose whether or not a hand should be played at crossruff. Many times a declarer will have the choice between this line of play and setting up a side suit in the dummy. It is difficult to lay down definite rules to follow in these cases. The exercise of good judgment is required.

One thing is certain, before embarking on the crossruff boat: The player must be able to count in high cards and ruffs the number of tricks required to fulfill contract, always bearing in mind that if the lead is ever relinquished the opponents will no doubt lead trumps, in an attempt to spoil the party.

In today's hand East became the declarer at a contract of six diamonds doubled, which he failed to fulfill because he overlooked a fundamental principle of crossruff technique. The bidding was somewhat weird. No one seemed to have a clear idea of what was going on, and all appeared to be swept away in the bidding rhythm. East's refusal to pass the five spade bid around to his partner, who might wish to apply the ax, was a gem of impropriety, but that is not the point at issue.

The king of spades was opened and ruffed, then a club was ruffed in dummy and another spade in the closed hand. This thing went merrily on until the fourth round of spades at which point North discarded the nine of hearts. Declarer now awoke to the necessity of cashing heart tricks, but it was too late. He was able to cash only one of them and North was able to ruff the other and return a trump.

Declarer had been blessed with great fortune. All his trumps were high so that there was no danger of an overruff. He could count five diamond tricks in each hand and the ace, king of hearts for a total of 12 tricks. But in crossruffing it is very vital to cash the high cards in the side suits early before the opposition runs out of one of the suits you are ruffing and is allowed a discard of the suit in which you have your high cards.

"HOLLYWOOD CANTEEN."

By Mae Tinée.

Them as likes big names will probably want to rush right over to the Roosevelt to see this movie, which is Hollywood telling the world what Hollywood does for the service men, and being pretty wide-eyed about it all.

Robert Hutton, a nice clean cut looking kid, is a G. I. just back from New Guinea with a Purple Heart and a yen for Joan Leslie. He and his buddy hop to Hollywood and find food, entertainment, and love thru the services of the Hollywood Canteen, maintained and staffed by the movie colony. Name bands play for them, male stars serve them sandwiches, and beautiful gals by the dozen are lined up as dancing partners.

There are some excellent performances in the picture, including Joan McCracken's giddy ballet to boogey-woogey rhythm, Carmen Cavallaro's rendition of "Voodoo Moon," and the popular new Cole Porter tune, "Don't Fence Me In," sung not once but twice. The young hero is a very likable lad, but the story could be a lot better, and some of the dialogue is certainly uninspired, to say the least.

I got awfully weary of the speeches given to a couple of Joes who rave about how wonderful democracy is because it permits an ordinary mortal, if in uniform, to see and talk to a "real live movie star."

The canteen must be fun for service men, and some parts of the film are good entertainment, but judicious cutting would have been a great help. The film runs 124 minutes, which is much too much for my taste.

Girl at Odds with Parents' Dating Edict

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

"This has caused many a conflict in our house. I'm just an average high school girl and my mother doesn't object to my going out with most boys, as long as she meets them first and they come up to the usual standards.

But she refuses to let me date boys of one particular nationality. This has nothing to do with race or religion but nationality only. I maintain that these boys are as much American as I am, but my parents refuse permission for such dates. I like one boy particularly and he enjoys being with me, too. Am I wrong in disagreeing with my parents?"

Are you sure that nationality is the only reason for your parents' refusing permission to date this particular Joe? If so, you do have a right to disagree with them. You wouldn't be justified in dating without their permission—no evenings out behind their backs—but you can stick to your own opinions. There comes a time in every gal's life when she must begin to do her own thinking and make her own decisions—maybe that time has come for you.

"Almost every Friday night I go skating with the fellows and recently a girl there caught my eye. She was a friend of a friend of mine, and after I met her we skated together almost all the time. I asked her to go steady and she thought I was kidding. She said she likes me but she doesn't want to go steady. She said, too, that she doesn't understand me and asked me how I know I like her when I've known her only a short time. I have never gone steady before because I wanted to wait till the right girl came along, but this girl is for me. I know it. . . ."

Well, just give the gal a chance to become equally convinced! Two weeks is a short time for any Joe to be certain that he has found the one and only gal for him. Try to spend a few evenings somewhere other than the skating rink to find out if you have mutual interests. But don't rush the girl. If you really think this a serious friendship treat it seriously. You've gone a little too fast already!

VINSON GETS TIP ON 1945 STEAKS FROM FEED BOX

Stock Men Warn Against OPA Price Ceiling.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

They told him some simple facts about farming: of hired hands who used to be happy with $75 a month and a share of the eggs for their wives but who now quit at $150, and of neighbors who became "nervous wrecks" listening to office of price administration news on midnight radio broadcasts.

Vinson told them the Roosevelt administration theory of farming from Washington. He gave them homely touches about being the only nonfarmer at a farmers' dinner who looked like a farmer, and threw in, altho he's an ex-federal judge, such remarks as "purty derned close" and "a leetle more money."

Protest Price Ceiling.

The cattle feeders were here to protest the OPA's new cattle program, which includes a $17.50 price ceiling per hundredweight for the finest cattle. [Note to city dwellers: Cattle feeders are men who buy cattle from the plains to fatten for the market.]

They came from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio, Minnesota, and Nebraska at the invitation of Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.]. Nine other senators, including Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.], gave the farmers support as they clashed with Vinson and accused the OPA experts of "reading statistics too much" and knowing too little about farming.

"It cost $16.89 last year to produce a hundred pounds of beef. The feed for it will cost $21.30 this year."

Brooks Asks Aims.

The cattle feeders told of their sons in the war and said meat for them is as essential as bullets. They appealed to Vinson to prevent the OPA from putting into effect a program which they said is bound to decrease the production of beef.

Brooks demanded that Vinson tell the farmers whether the administration's chief concern is producing more meat during the war or reducing the number of cattle to prevent an oversupply after the war.

"The government ought to give them the answer," Brooks said. "If the government is going to give them a licking this year, and stabilize the market afterward, maybe they'd be willing to take the licking. But I don't think the government's ultimate object is clear."

Become "Nervous Wrecks."

Here are some of the comments of the cattle feeders, many of whom came directly from their feeding lots to tell Vinson their story after the OPA had devised a program which they said violates its promise that there would be no further tinkering with cattle production:

Clint Glenny, Rockford, Ill.—My neighbors have been sitting up nights to find out from the radio what the OPA's doing. And they're nervous wrecks.

An Ohio farmer—By feeding my corn to my cattle I got 80 cents a bushel for it. I could have sat on my front porch and sold it for $1.25. We are working our wives and our children to furnish meat for the army, while a Cleveland industrial firm is making so much money it hands out $6,000 bonuses to employes. We oughtn't to have to produce at a loss.

Threatens to Liquidate.

E. I. Mason, Brooklyn, Ia.—I have 2,100 head of cattle. If this order goes into effect, I'll have to liquidate them. [Send them to the market immediately without fattening them.]

W. Frank Reed, Rockford, Ill.—There's not a steer on my farm for the first time in 40 years. I had to sell my cattle for the same price I paid for them, and that hurts.

At one point, Vinson shifted the discussion from live stock to the recent corn freeze which made it difficult for farmers to buy corn.

CREW OF 26,000 TO START FARM CENSUS MONDAY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1 (AP).—The census bureau today announced that its 1945 census of agriculture will start Jan. 8.

The farm census is taken every five years. Approximately 26,000 full time enumerators have been trained for the two month task.

Only farm operators, of whom there are an estimated 6 million, will be interviewed. Every farm operator will be asked about his production in the 1944 crop year and his inventory as of today.

He will be asked the location of the farm acreage, how many live on it, how many houses they live in, and what facilities the houses have; the value of the lands, buildings and machinery, and the amount of mortgage debt.

Operators will be requested to give the number of workers, paid and unpaid; amount of work done by the operator and his family; total cash outlay for labor thruout the year, and the number of days on which the farm operator may have worked on the farm for pay or profit.

In addition, a certain number of operators, on a sample basis, will be questioned on many other subjects, such as fertilizer and feed purchases, live stock, amount of timber cut, and motor vehicles.

CUTLER LINES UP HOUSE SUPPORT IN SPEAKER RACE

Green Keeps Silence on Preference.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 1.—With Gov. Green still silent on the sidelines, Reed F. Cutler of Lewistown today drew newly arriving legislators into his battle for the speakership of the Illinois house. Hotel rooms buzzed with the politics of organizing the house and the senate, both controled by Republicans.

Reed F. Cutler.

Cutler, majority leader the last two sessions, scoffed at the persistent report the opposition might succeed in electing Hugh Green of Jacksonville as a compromise in the large field of candidates. He reported he had talked to Rep. Green and found him unwilling to accept the post.

Stepped Out Twice Before.

"An overwhelming majority of the members are for me," Cutler said. "Since when can half a dozen members block the majority choice? Every time a speaker is elected there is a small group threatening to be obstreperous if their wishes are not carried out. But I've never seen the tail wag the dog."

Cutler backers recalled he had stepped aside in 1941 and in 1943 to help elect Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago. Schnackenberg retired from the legislature last year.

Harry Topping of Kankakee and J. Ward Smith of Ottawa were other house members with hats in the ring who appeared on the scene early. Arrival of Henry Scarborough of Payson cheered Republicans; the octogenarian erroneously had been reported hospitalized. The G. O. P. has 79 votes in the house, only two more than a constitutional majority for passing bills.

Gov. Green said he had no comment on the contests. He was reported to be uncertain whether he should take action in the tangle. If he does, there will be immediate revamping of battle lines.

Bidwill Lead Reported.

In the race for president pro tem of the senate, Arthur J. Bidwill of River Forest was said to have a lead, with the chance of gaining the supporters of two other avowed candidates, R. G. Crisenberry of Murphysboro and Everett Peters of St. Joseph.

T. Mac Downing of Macomb and Edward Laughlin of Freeport are said to be the main candidates on the other side of the fence. Here also a nod from Gov. Green would be expected to alter the situation swiftly.

Absence of any word on administration preference kept the situation "fluid," with the result that many legislators were treading warily. Rewards at stake for those on the winning sides include chairmanships of important committees.

PRO FOOTBALL, BASEBALL SAFE FOR TIME BEING

Tougher Prospects for 4-Fs: Byrnes.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1 (AP).—James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, indicated today that such sports as professional football and baseball are safe for the time being from any outright order suspending them during the war.

James F. Byrnes.

However, he outlined a program for tougher treatment of 4-F draft cases which may hit sports heavily—professional and amateur alike. And indirectly, it might close down sports as effectively as an order.

It is Byrnes' idea that 4-F's should be put in the army for limited service or steered into essential war plants, and that congress should provide legislation to permit this, if present regulations prove inadequate to solve the man power problems.

Might Play in Off Time.

The director of war mobilization and reconversion figures that if a football player with a bad eardrum can hear the quarter back he can hear the first sergeant, or at least the plant foreman.

Byrnes was unable to say what percentages of 4-F's might go into essential civilian jobs—where sports stars still might shine on the playing field in off time. The answer to that question may determine the future of sports while the war is on.

If the bulk of 4-F's should be put in the army and stay there the sports world would lose some important talent.

Byrnes let his views on sports and 4-F's be known at a news conference and in a report to President Roosevelt and congress on the work of his office.

Regarding the possibility of an order that would halt other sports, as horse and dog racing has been ordered stopped on Wednesday, Byrnes told reporters that "I have not given consideration to it at all."

It Is Up to Congress.

Nevertheless, he has been thinking over what should be done with 4,000,000 4-F's, and he said congress should consider whether to take all 4-F's into the services and assign them to things they can do.

It would be up to congress to determine, he said, whether all should go into the services and then some of them be transferred into war industry. Whether such transferees would be in uniform and who would be their boss also are questions congress will have to answer.

Asked whether it would be satisfactory to put 4-F's in war plants thru some control measure, instead of taking them into the services, Byrnes replied:

"That's what would happen thru any of the measures. I assume congress would say that if a man is in an essential war plant he should not be drafted into the service. If he is in a nonessential or less essential industry, he should be drafted for limited service and assigned to such duties as he could perform."

De Paul Beats Illini, 63-56; 28 for Mikan

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 1 [Special].—The De Paul basketball team tonight defeated Illinois, 63 to 56. George Mikan, 6 foot 9 inch De Paul center, scored 28 points in 31 minutes, before fouling out with his team ahead 58-39. The Chicago team was ahead at the half, 39 to 32.

It was De Paul's ninth victory in 10 starts and reversed a previous game in which Illinois won, 43 to 40, in the Chicago Stadium.

The westerners extended their unbroken string of post-season victories to eight despite a makeshift back field that sometimes missed its signals on the attack and muddled its defensive assignments.

As ever, the Trojans capitalized on their scoring opportunities. When the chips were down Quarter Back Jim Hardy came thru with two perfect touchdown passes and once crossed up the southerners by running over the goal on a hidden ball play.

Tennessee Line Sparkles.

Tennessee's line, outweighed 16 pounds to the man, was the big surprise of the day. It turned in a creditable performance and during the first half stymied the Trojan running game. In the later stages the Volunteer forwards showed the effects of the physical strain.

The boys from the south had the best back on the field, one Buster Stephens, and they accorded him some crisp blocking. He almost got away for touchdowns on two occasions.

But the Trojan man power situation was too much. They shoved the tiring Vols all over the field in the final period, scoring two touchdowns. The last score came with only 10 seconds left.

They Stop the Clock.

With the clock running out and the ball on the 1 yard mark, two Trojan substitutes went in and stopped the clock. The Trojans had exceeded their time allotment and the officials slapped on a five yard penalty. Hardy promptly fired a pass to Sub End Doug MacLachan.

Southern California had a touchdown before Tennessee could get the feel of the turf. On the fourth play of the game, Jim Callanan, Trojan right end, blocked Stephens' punt on the Vol 43, picked up the ball on the 38 and skipped across the goal untouched.

The Vols had the upper hand the rest of the first period. Their line actually outcharged the Trojans. Stephens once got away on a 38 yard jaunt around left end and his pass later to End Hugh Blessing in the open was marked for a touchdown until Blessing dropped the ball.

One Score Is Nullified.

The Trojans lost a third touchdown in the second quarter as Salata stepped a few inches out of the sideline in the end zone in taking another pass from Hardy.

This was the worst beating ever suffered by a southern team in the Rose bowl. Tennessee lost to the Trojans here in 1940, 14 to 0.

Cravath said after the game that Tennessee was the best college team his boys had faced all season and that Guard Bob Dobelstein and Stephens ranked with the best college men he had seen. Of Hardy, Jeff said: "He is, in my book, one of the all-time great T formation quarter backs."

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Detroit Red Wings, a half game out of the National Hockey league lead, last night won their first victory in Chicago in a season and a half, 4 to 2, which probably wasn't so remarkable as the fact 12,268 frostbitten enthusiasts braved the zero wave and paid dough to see them do it.

The Blackhawks, playing their third game in as many nights, gave a good account of themselves against the team from which they had won two of the three victories the Chicagoans have to show for their 22 matches this season. They led, 1 to 0, in the eighth minute of the second period, and possessed a 2 to 2 tie going into the last five minutes of the contest.

Liscombe Breaks 2 to 2 Tie.

The 2 to 2 tie was broken by Carl Liscombe in 15:16 and another goal by Murray Armstrong gave the visitors the marker they didn't need in 18:59 of the third period, a minute and a second before the show ended.

Bill Mosienko opened the scoring for the evening when he tallied at 3:51 of the first period and the customers were given an added thrill a few minutes later when Cully Simon of the Wings spilled Pete Horeck, then leaped on him and started to pummel the Hawk winger. Simon drew a five minute penalty and Horeck a two minute.

Smith Scores for Hawks.

Steve Wochy's long shot tied the score at 1 to 1 in 7:48 of the second period and the visitors waited until four seconds before the period ended to take a 2 to 1 lead. Syd Howe sent the puck past Goalie Mike Karakas with Mud Bruneteau and Simon earning assists.

Clint Smith effected a 2 to 2 tie when he scored in 11:18 of the final period with the assistance of Mosienko and Bill Thoms. Then came the game wrecking effort of Liscombe, assisted by Armstrong, and Armstrong's insurance tally.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Jan. 1.—Duke's Blue Devils scored on their first four plays this afternoon in the Sugar bowl. They scored on their last two and on these six plays were founded Duke's victory over the University of Alabama, 29 to 26, in possibly the most thrilling of the 11 New Orleans New Year's day contests which broke the scoring record for the series.

Each team made four touchdowns, but Duke kicked accurately for three points to Alabama's two. This difference, after the lead had alternated for three periods, dictated the strategy by which Alabama gave Duke two points by intentional safety and eventually received a three point licking instead of defeat by the narrowest of margins.

Without Duke's first scoring surge, which surprised the capacity crowd of 72,000, the Blue Devils probably could not have won. Obviously they needed the touchdown in the final three minutes. But in the intervening 55 minutes the fierceness of competition and the success of Alabama's air attack as opposed to Duke's winning power drives sent the thousands to emotional heights only possible in a high, free scoring football battle waged under excellent weather conditions.

Gilmer Passes 30 Yards.

Even after Duke had smashed 39 yards on its final two plays to lead, 29 to 26, a battered, tired Alabama eleven went from its own 22 yard line to Duke's 26, where Ralph Jones, 'Bama end, was run down after a 30 yard pass from Harry Gilmer. Jones, who earlier had scored twice, almost was away, but such a climax was not to occur. And this Sugar bowl contest needed no such conclusion.

The outline of this game is Duke's power against Alabama's passes. The characters are Tom Davis and George Clark, hard hitting backs, for Duke, and Harry Gilmer and Ralph Jones for Alabama. Gilmer's passing, two of which were made after leaping runs and gained 42 yards each, was phenomenal. Jones was terrific as an offensive end.

Duke had power and thus held the ball for 70 plays from scrimmage to 38 for Alabama. But the Crimson had Gilmer who today completed 8 passes in as many trials for 132 yards. One failed to gain and a screen pass, altho completed, lost a yard, but two tosses to Jones scored and others set up a third touchdown.

Duke Takes 20-19 Lead.

After Duke's initial touchdown Alabama scored twice in the opening period and again in the second for a 19 to 7 advantage. The Blue Devils rallied to finish the half trailing 19 to 13. Midway in the third quarter Davis led Duke 64 yards to the Alabama goal. He carried the ball 11 times in 12 plays and the last six were required to cover only 12 yards. With Harold Raether's kick for the point, Duke was in front, 20 to 19.

Alabama then deliberately made no effort to score, fearing Duke's retaliatory power. The Tide waited for a break and got it. Less than 10 minutes of the fourth quarter was left when Hugh Morrow, Tide quarter back, intercepted Cliff Lewis' pass in flat territory at Duke's left flank. Morrow sped 75

Play in the 25th University of Chicago interscholastic basketball tournament concluded in the Maroon fieldhouse yesterday with Senn High school's Bulldogs defeating Gage Park, 37 to 33, for the championship.

The Bulldogs, whose path to the title was marked with upset victories in the quarter-finals and semi-finals, succeeds Du Sable, which won the tournament in 1941, last year the meet was held before war forced a three year suspension. The loss was Gage Park's first defeat of the season.

Survivors of a field of 34 which started to play 11 days ago, Senn and Gage Park exchanged leads several times in the fast moving first quarter that had the crowd of 3,200, mostly high school students, constantly standing to see the action. Senn led, 12 to 11, at the end of the period.

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Jan. 1.—Oklahoma, where the wind comes sweeping down the plain, has a football team that today practically swept the strongest team in the Southeastern conference right out of Florida's famous Orange bowl.

The University of Tulsa, with two great bursts of scoring power, whipped Georgia Tech, 26 to 12, before a capacity crowd of 30,000 in Miami's 11th annual New Year's day gridiron spectacle. The game was played in 76 degree temperature under cloudless skies. The day maintained the tradition of the enterprise, which never has had a drop of rain to mar the setting.

Avenge 1944 Bowl Defeat.

It was apparent after the first four minutes of play that Georgia Tech today was no match for the team it had defeated in the Sugar bowl a year ago by two points. Tulsa had decisive advantages in weight, speed, and experience.

The Oklahomans marched 65 yards for a touchdown after taking the opening kick-off with a demonstration of running power and forward passing excellence beautiful to behold. They scored again in the first quarter by catching the Tech secondary fast asleep on a fake pass play. The play started from the Georgians' 8 yard line, Perry Moss, one of the most versatile players on the field, faking a pass then handing the ball to Ed Shedlosky who sped around his left end unmolested for a touchdown.

Speed Up Scoring Tempo.

Those two tallies made up the scoring for the first half, but the tempo picked up when the teams returned from intermission and three touchdowns were scored in five and one-half minutes, two by Tulsa and one by Tech.

While Tech never had a chance to win the game, it fared better in the statistics than in the point totals. The Yellow Jackets earned 16 first downs to Tulsa's 14, most of which came by passing. Tulsa had a margin of 180 yards to 36 from scrimmage, but couldn't match Tech in the air. The Georgians, due mainly to Frank Broyles' accuracy, completed 18 of their 34 aerials for a total gain of 304 yards. Tulsa clicked with six in 15 efforts for 137 yards.

Rumsey Taylor was the only Georgia back who could gain with consistency. He lugged the ball 11 times for 37 yards. Tulsa had a full back named Camp Wilson who averaged 5 yards per try, not including his 90 yard trip for a touchdown after receiving a Tech kick-off, which doesn't count in gains from scrimmage. Another Tulsa back, Bobby Jack Stuart, a freshman, averaged 6.2 yards in 13 ball carrying efforts.

New High in Showmanship.

Always an eye filling, multicolored spectacle, this year's pageant set a new high in showmanship. It was described by the announcer as a rhythmic picture in technicolor, which ought to attract the attention of Hollywood, provided any one in California thinks anything in Florida is worth imitating. The climax of the between halves ceremony brought the formal introduction of the Orange bowl queen, Miss Vernell Bush, who was escorted onto the field atop a bowl filled with oranges. The band was composed of 750 high school musicians recruited from 12 units.

This touchdown and a successful kick for the point, with three minutes remaining, gave the West a 13 to 7 victory over the East before 60,000 in the 20th Shrine New Year's day football game this afternoon.

It was an uphill fight almost all the way for the West, which yielded a touchdown in the first quarter when Notre Dame's Frank Dancewicz hurled a 22 yard scoring pass to Jack Mead of Wisconsin. Tom Hughes, another Badger, kicked the point for a 7 to 0 lead which stood up until the dynamic fourth period.

He Takes Horvath Along.

Horvath, the Ohio State star who was the Western conference's most valuable player in the 1944 season, also felt the full impact of the first touchdown the aroused westerners scored on 13 plays in a 64 yard march earlier in the fourth period.

This drive started when Dick Ottele of Washington and Laverne Merritt, a service man, alternated in rushing plays. When the East's 27 yard line was reached, this pair was replaced by Waterfield and Kennedy. It was third down and 10 yards to go. Kennedy struck thru

Angelucci to Battle Sopko at Marigold

Mike Sopko, Indiana Harbor middleweight, will make his debut as a main event principal when he meets Lou Angelucci of South Chicago in an eight round bout tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace st.

Sopko gained the chance by knocking out James [Smyles] Wilson in the second round in the north side club last Tuesday. Previously he stopped Joe Harris of Cincinnati and scored an impressive victory over Jimmy Pierce of West Allis, Wis., in Milwaukee.

Art McWhorter, light heavyweight stablemate of Sopko, from Gary, is matched with Curly Denton of Cincinnati in a six round semi-windup. Denton, who upset Corp. Buddy Rose in Indianapolis two weeks ago, will be making his first Chicago appearance.

Eight Catholic Youth Organization boxing champions will leave today for Kansas City, where they will meet an all-star Kansas City team Thursday in the Kansas City Municipal auditorium in an infantile paralysis fund benefit.

yards down the south side line behind finely placed interference. Morrow himself kicked the point and Alabama led, 26 to 20.

Could Alabama stand off Duke's power for 10 minutes? The Tide was penalized 5 yards for delay at the kickoff, stopped the return run on Duke's 46. Then the Blue Devils roared to Alabama's 9 yard line in seven plays, five by Davis. Davis plunged four more times but Alabama held and took the ball on downs inches from its goal.

Duke Gains 2 Points on Safety.

Gilmer stepped back into his end zone in punt formation. He took the center's pass and dropped to the ground for a safety. Alabama then led, 26 to 22, but rules require a kick-off or punt from Alabama's 20 yard line. And this play—which few may have appreciated—makes all players on both teams on side. Any one can recover the ball.

Gilmer punted high and short. There was a chance Alabama might get the ball and if it did only three minutes remained. The ball came down just in front of an Alabama man but bounded sharply ahead. Alabama could not recover. Clark of Duke came back to Alabama's 39 yard line.

'Bamas' tiring line was no match for Davis and Clark. Davis swept around defensive right end for 19 yards. Clark negotiated the other flank and ran to the goal. Raether's last kick for the point established the 29 to 26 score.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Northwestern university maintains a party line with the boys who went from its athletic fields to the battlefields. The party line trick is accomplished by the Wildcat News, a 10 page mimeographed monthly newspaper containing no advertising and an increasing circulation which now has reached 700.

No editor, going all the way back to Horace Greeley, ever took more pride in his product than does Walter Paulison, founder and publisher of the Wildcat News. The publication, which goes to the Wildcats' fighting men 'round the globe, serves a double purpose, also getting information from the subscribers. With each edition Editor Paulison inserts a questionnaire on which the boys write of their recent experiences. In this way the fighting men keep tab on Northwestern's doings and the university obtains up to date information on its fighting men.

Thrill Is Mutual.

"We sometimes wonder if we don't get more of a thrill learning about the fellows' experience than they do in getting the report from home," says Paulison. "The coaches really eat up the news from our soldiers and sailors."

Paulison's editorial star is Frank Hill, the track coach, who conducts a column called Covering the Home Front. Hill gives it a light touch and, judging from the fan mail, the column has a terrific appeal. Seven of the pages are devoted to letters from the Wildcat fighters, who thus learn of one another's activities.

In the fall of 1942 the Northwestern athletic department sent out football programs to its former athletes in the service. There was such an enthusiastic response to this that Paulison and Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, athletic director, hit upon the plan for a regular publication.

"I would say 75 per cent of our circulation goes overseas," says Paulison. At last report, 12 former Wildcats had lost their lives in service.

The check on the fighters' whereabouts, made possible by the questionnaire, reveals that Ike Kepford, Ollie [Red] Hahnenstein, and John R. Galvin, all junior grade navy lieutenants, have served on the same ship. Kepford, one of the earlier heroes of the Pacific war, now is in this country.

Galvin Mows 'Em Down.

Galvin, who never rose above the intramural class as an athlete, isn't doing badly himself, as witness this recent report:

"Red Hahnenstein just reported aboard our carrier as a flight deck officer. Had a little luck lately—on Sept. 21 I got two Jap Zeros; on Oct. 12 I got three new type Jap fighters, and yesterday I got two Jap bombers and damaged two more."

"At least I've made the first team and am seeing what's what out here. The Japs scare hell out of us but don't seem to do much damage—at least to us. These flattops sure are swell duty, only you can get lost aboard them so easily."

"We have been busier than that traditional one-armed paper hanger. We were in the thick of it taking MacArthur back. It was tougher than Notre Dame and Minnesota combined. Ran into Lt. Ed Wendt who was a gridder back in '34. Have seen Ralph Isaacson [basketball '43] and several other N. U. men in the past few days. Familiar faces are really a Godsend."

Senn was ahead, 20 to 17, in the third quarter as Frank Walters scored two free throws and Len Pearson followed with a field goal. By the end of the quarter Senn had increased its advantage to four points and was leading, 28 to 24, as the fourth period opened. The Owls narrowed the score to 31 to 30 when Frank Saracco dribbled in for a layup and Frank Laporte followed with a free throw. The score was 35 to 33 with a minute remaining, but Pearson came thru with a field goal in the last 15 seconds to make the final score 37 to 33.

Frank Walters paced Senn with 10 points and Don Feeney of Gage Park scored 11 points. The attack of the third place winners was led by Cliff France with 10 points. Hoffman's 21 points was the outstanding performance of the day.

THIS YEAR MAY BE CRUCIAL ONE FOR INDUSTRY

Await Beginning of Shift to Peace.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The crucial period ahead for business and industry will begin with the shift from all out war production to competitive civilian operation. A year ago industry expected 1944 would be a year of adjustment to civilian production. Today industry remains largely engaged in war activity and the big adjustments are ahead.

With the military timetable uncertain, industry is holding in abeyance its plans for getting back to a peace time basis of operation.

Industrial leaders forsee a period of 3 to 4 years of great industrial activity after the war if the initial problems of shifting back to civilian operation are met properly. They regard the period of conversion as critical, because the temporary unemployment may be seized upon as an excuse for a vast government program of synthetic job making.

Could Smother Revival.

They warn such a development might smother the revival of enterprise which in the long run is counted on to bring about a high level of productive employment and opportunity not otherwise possible.

The promise of jobs, it is emphasized, lies not alone in the full operation of existing industrial plants but also in new economic activities. The service industries will provide opportunities for new enterprises and employment. Under favorable conditions new industries will get started and existing enterprises will be able to exploit their economic opportunities.

Before the war only 23 per cent of the employed persons in the United States were engaged in manufacturing. About the same number were engaged in agriculture and the remainder were self employed or engaged in service activities. Most governmental discussions of employment emphasize the need for industry to provide employment.

Other Jobs Generated.

Industrial spokesmen emphasize that when industry is free to operate, vast employment opportunities are generated outside the industrial field. In their opinion, the danger in the conversion period is that the country will lose sight of fundamental factors necessary to achieve a high level of useful and self-supporting jobs. They insist that the groups referred to as "business" and "industry" cannot insure high employment solely because it is desirable. Other factors enter into the situation.

It is the responsibility of all groups, they emphasize, to recognize the importance of the terms of employment, the necessity for investment and the psychological factors that enter into economic affairs. Given an environment favorable to enterprise, industry is optimistic about a future of expanding production.

Rising Trends Carry Stocks to 7 Year Top

MARKETS REOPEN TODAY.

Commodity and security markets in the United States and abroad, closed yesterday in observance of New Year's day, will reopen today.

New York, Jan. 1 (AP).—The stock market held on the upgrade thru 1944, reaching the highest average price level since September, 1937, in the face of three multibillion dollar war loan drives, a turbulent Presidential campaign, and a series of "peace scares."

The rise was an extension of the upward spiral which started in April, 1942, amid doubts and fears incident to feverish preparations for all-out war in answer to Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor.

Much of the advance was achieved on two spirited moves, one at midyear, the other in the first half of December. Factors commonly associated with these two upswings suggested inconsistency in appraisal of events.

Buy on Short or Long War.

In early July a seven year top was reached on a wave of buying which Wall Street sources said was prompted by the successful launching of the Normandy invasion. In contrast, the December rise which carried averages well beyond the July peak on the heaviest volume of the year, derived momentum from admissions of allied authorities that earlier forecasts of Germany's defeat before the end of 1944 must be revised.

Early in the year and between the two major upswings the market was governed by cross currents of speculative action and cleavages which at times buoyed so-called "peace" shares and depressed securities of companies most heavily committed to war work.

Because of substantial support from the vast supply of idle investment money, however, a condition accentuated by heavy government spending, every period of wavering or reaction brought a fresh flow of speculative and investment buying sufficient to maintain the general upward trend.

Industrials, Rails Gain Most.

Measured by the Associated Press 60 stock average the year's rise amounted to almost 9 points over the index of 49.5 at the end of 1943. Industrials and rails had an average gain of approximately 10 points each. The utility composite climbed about four points.

Transactions on the New York exchange totaled 263,074,018 shares, compared with 278,741,765 in 1943 and 125,677,863 in 1942. Of 1,257 issues traded, 1,101 finished the year higher, 70 declined, and 86 were unchanged.

The "peace scares" did not have such violent effects as in 1943, when prices broke sharply in July on the Italian surrender and again in November on signing of the Moscow pact, but they did indicate investment caution over industrial reconversion problems. The main question was ability to resume peace production without heavy losses on contract terminations, inventory liquidation, and general transaction costs.

Reconversion View Modified.

In the final few months of the year reconversion was put in a more favorable light by federal legislation and planning by industry itself, but the stock market did not discard the idea that a sudden ending of hostilities would cause severe dislocations.

Inflation remained an active word in board room vocabularies, and some sources contended part of the demand for common stocks was as a hedge against a possible further rise in prices.

Expect Large Rail Buying of Diesel Engines

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The great record made by the diesel electric locomotives in war time railroad operations makes certain heavy purchases of this type of motive power after the war, railroad men predict. Carriers using diesels report noteworthy availability records for them under the strain of heavy traffic, both in freight and passenger service.

Of approximately 42,000 locomotives in railroad service, more than 2,000 are diesel electrics. One estimate puts total horse power of all railroad locomotives at approximately 113 million, of which steam locomotives provide 105 million, all-electric locomotives 3 million, and diesel electrics 5 million horse power.

In 1929 fewer than 50 diesel electric switchers were in use on the railroads. Even in 1936 when locomotives of this type were hanging up speed records in passenger service on the main lines of the western railroads the total owned by the railroads was little more than 100.

Hold Advantageous Position.

The big strides made by this form of equipment in less than a decade indicate that builders of the diesel electrics will hold an advantageous position among post-war industries. Orders in hand and in prospect promise at least several years capacity operations for them after the war.

The Electro-Motive division of the General Motors corporation has orders for some 600 diesel electric units—a locomotive may be composed of one or more units—indicating more than 300 complete locomotives. The Baldwin Locomotive company reported it has orders for 343 diesel electric locomotives.

Chicago has led the nation in development of this new motive power. The Burlington was the first railroad to place a locomotive of this type in operation, using it to power its Pioneer Zephyr, and most of the big main line locomotives in use have been built in Electro-Motive's big plant near La Grange.

Fairbanks Enters Rail Field.

Another Chicago company, Fairbanks, Morse & Co., has entered the manufacture of railway diesel electrics in the last year. It has completed one switcher each for the Milwaukee and the North Western, and soon will deliver one to the Santa Fe.

By the middle of this year it expects to be in production on passenger and freight locomotives in 2,000 horsepower units. Using three units in a team, locomotives could be of 6,000 horsepower, about the same as those built by other companies.

Indicating the heavy war demand for diesel electrics, Electro-Motive delivered freight locomotives with 1,053,000 horsepower to 17 major railroads between Dec. 7, 1941, and Dec. 31, 1944. Locomotives totaling 675,000 horsepower were delivered during 1944 alone. From January, 1940, when the first big freighter went into operation on the Santa Fe, to Dec. 7, 1941, the company delivered freight diesel electrics totaling 66,150 horsepower to five railroads.

The Santa Fe leads the railroads in number of freight diesels in operation, with 58 locomotives of 5,400 horsepower. Most of these big engines are in use on the 459 mile run between Winslow, Ariz., and Barstow, Cal., one of the most difficult on the system and covering both mountain and desert operations.

Electro-Motive reported that one western road operating 12 diesels in mountain territory moved more freight with them than it did with its entire fleet of steam locomotives prior to installation of the diesels.

Another road using a 5,400 horsepower freighter took 50 loaded freight cars from Chicago to a Pacific port in only three hours more time than is required for its fastest passenger schedule of about 55 hours.

TRIBUNE INVESTORS' GUIDE ANSWERS 9,400 QUERIES DURING 1944

More than 9,400 inquiries were answered by the Tribune Investors' Guide in 1944. Questions relating to the post-war business prospects of corporations, dividend records, foreign bonds, and individual income tax problems constituted a large proportion.

Changes in the tax law produced a steady flow of questions regarding personal exemptions, dependency credits, and withholding taxes. The method of determining capital gains and losses was another subject of numerous inquiries. Hundreds of special reports on various phases of the income tax were distributed.

Since June 14, 1914, when THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE introduced its investors' service, 494,191 written inquiries have been answered. The service was the first of its type offered by a newspaper of general circulation.

BONDS ADVANCE IN YEAR AS NEW FINANCING GAINS

New York, Jan. 1. (AP).—A steady rise in prices of existing issues and the largest amount of new financing since 1936 combined to lift the bond market into the front ranks of financial activity in 1944.

The apparently inexhaustible reservoir of investment funds pushed up prices of the better rated corporate obligations and at the year's end the 10 low yield bonds in the Associated Press averages closed at $116.40 per $100 bond, only 30 cents below the record peak. At the end of 1943 this index stood at $113.99 and a year earlier at $112.54.

Spectacular advances, interrupted by spells of acute weakness among railroad loans provided the bond department with its best show. Prices of many issues doubled in 1944.

Securities of utility companies were in wider demand, but progress was less spectacular than in the rails. Foreign dollar bonds reflected the changing fortunes of war but ended higher than a year earlier. United States government securities set the pace for stability.

Chicago Area Industrial Building Gains 11 Million

New plant construction, expansion of manufacturing facilities, and commitments for post-war industrial construction in December represented an expenditure of $11,982,000, bringing new industrial investments in the Chicago area to $80,807,707 for 1944, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday.

Deposit Total of Continental Bank at Peak

Deposits of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company rose more than 273 million dollars last year to set a new record for the bank, Walter J. Cummings, chairman, said yesterday in his annual report to stockholders.

Walter J. Cummings.

Net income, loans, holdings of United States government securities, and cash and balances due from other banks also were increased.

Profits Equal $9.03 a Share.

Profit in 1944 was $16,262,806, or $9.03 a share, compared with $15,422,967, or $8.57 a share, a year earlier. Cash dividends of $7,200,000 were paid shareholders and undivided profits were increased $9,062,806. Gross earnings in 1944 totaled $38,055,228, against $34,988,292, but operating expenses, taxes, and interest, which totaled $21,930,252, were $2,149,224 higher than in 1943, mostly because of higher taxes.

The record deposits of $2,447,740,086 showed an increase of $273,784,347. An aggregate of $139,469,180 in capital accounts was made up of 60 millions in capital stock, 60 millions in surplus, and $19,469,180 in undivided profits. The reserve for contingencies, totaling $18,109,934, continued to be maintained as a free general reserve.

Loans totaled $401,391,526, an increase of $38,228,043, with the average amount of loans on the books in 1944 well above the average of a year earlier, Cummings said.

Government Holdings Gain.

Holdings of United States government securities increased $236,262,855 in 1944 to $1,638,809,259. The entire portfolio of these securities "is well balanced as to short, intermediate, and long term maturities," Cummings explained. Cash and balances due from other banks totaled $502,196,052, against $482,949,998 at the end of 1943.

"One of our objectives thruout the year has been that of helping to speed victory," Cummings said. "This we have done in many ways, but particularly by continuing to make loans to manufacturers of war materials and other essential businesses, by purchasing United States government securities for the bank's portfolio, and by coöperating fully with the treasury in the sale of government securities."

Life Insurance Holdings Increase to 148 Billions

The American public purchased 14 billion 200 million dollars of life insurance last year, increasing total holdings to 148 billion 400 millions, the Institute of Life Insurance reported yesterday. The total does not include National Service Life Insurance, owned by service men and women, now approximately 120 billion dollars.

AUTO MAKERS TOP 22 BILLION IN WAR OUTPUT

But Industry Makes Plans for Peace.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 1 (AP).—The automobile industry produced approximately 9 billion 320 million dollars of war implements in 1944 plus approximately 700 million dollars of replacement parts for civilian cars and trucks and managed to squeeze in some preliminary planning for post-war activities.

The year's production effort brought to 22 billion 920 million the dollar volume output since Pearl Harbor of war goods in the former automobile plants. Tanks, combat vehicles, troop carriers, bomber planes, aircraft engines, shells and guns and scores of other war weapons rolled out of the factories at a rate of more than 1 million dollars an hour.

No Passenger Cars Made.

As in most of 1942 and all of 1943 the car industry during 1944 made no passenger vehicles for civilian use. It did make plans, insofar as the vast war output permitted, to get back into the production of passenger automobiles in the shortest possible time after its war job has been finished.

The planning has been largely paper work, but the industry was authorized late in the year to assign a limited number of technicians to preparing for the big reconversion program ahead. The paper work included thoro appraisal of equipment on hand to determine what may be used in peace time production and what new machine tools and other facilities will be needed.

With virtually no exception, car manufacturers will offer slightly altered 1942 models as their first post-war cars. Alterations to distinguish new cars from the 1942 models will be confined largely to trimming, radiator grills and fender lines. Under the hood will be the same engines, carburetors and ignition systems that went into the last pre-war vehicles.

Many Changes in Prospect.

Beyond the first post-war models, many changes are in prospect in power plants, transmissions and mechanical designing generally. Engines with cylinder blocks of low-grade aluminum are certain as are more automatic transmissions and perhaps some adaptation of the fuel injection systems developed in the production of aviation engines.

But the industry has just about decided that six-volt ignition systems are adequate for passenger car operation. Use of 12 and 24-volt systems on war time trucks and aircraft led to suggestions the higher voltage installations might be considered for post-war civilian uses. An industry survey showed, however, that the higher voltage systems would add little that would justify the additional expense in material changes and assembly, installation and maintenance costs.

Once the industry resumes unrestricted production it expects pled up demand to require an output of 6 million passenger vehicles a year for three to five years. Price increases apparently are inevitable. Some industry authorities have estimated the probable increase at as much as 40 per cent above pre-war prices.

Sales Battle Expected.

Others expect the most severe sales struggle in the industry's history and have predicted the increase in the more popular models will be limited to about 10 per cent.

During the year Henry Ford II., 27, became more prominent in automotive activities. Being groomed to head the company founded by his grandfather, he was made executive vice president.

He announced recently that his company's post-war plans included the production of a lower priced model to supplement the regular line.

Possible Food Excess Hinges on Nazi Defeat

BY ANNE DOUGLAS.

United States farm production in 1945 will be at record or near record levels, provided growing conditions are favorable and farmers' plantings meet government goals, it has been generally agreed.

Whether a surplus will develop depends on the end of the war in Europe. If the war there continues, civilian supplies of many commodities may be smaller than in 1944, but an early end to European hostilities might mean an over supply, food experts said. Federal food officials are faced with the problem of assuring plenty of food, while planning for a post-war market that may be unable to absorb such production.

Less Meat Predicted.

A two billion pound decrease in meat tonnage was predicted for 1945 and beef and veal are the only meats in which an increase was expected. The increase will result when large herds of western range cattle are reduced, but the animals will be marketed at lighter weights, it was said.

Contributing to the general decrease, will be a sharp drop in hog marketings and a sheep and lamb population expected to be the lowest in 10 years. Total production of about 22¾ billion pounds of meat was predicted. Of that total the American Meat Institute said civilians will get 142 pounds per person if Germany is defeated early in 1945, or 122 pounds if the war continues until late in the year. Per capita consumption in 1944 was 143 pounds.

Wheat production this year may reach 1 billion bushels with favorable growing conditions, experts said, approximating last year's all-time high. Approximately 750 million bushels will be needed for feed, seed, and food, which would leave a substantial surplus in addition to a large indicated carry-over from 1944. Corn production is expected to be as large as last year, when it reached 3,228,361,000 bushels, also an all-time high.

Reduce Vegetable Crops.

Judging by war food administration goals, production of fresh garden truck will be reduced 10 per cent, but canned fruit and vegetable packs probably will be as large as possible to meet heavy demand.

Government officials hope that 1945 egg production will be much smaller than in 1944 and have set a goal of 3 billion 920 million dozen compared with indicated production of 4 billion 676 million dozen in 1944. Despite WFA plans to dispose of the surplus thru shipments abroad, another market congestion such as occurred last spring is believed possible.

Butter production this year will be less than in 1944, which was smaller than in 1943, unless an adjustment is made in price ceilings, the American Butter institute said. Sharply increased demand for fluid milk, combined with diversion of cream away from butter making because of price differentials, is responsible for the slump, the institute said.

9½ Pounds Per Person.

Last year's production for civilian consumption on the basis of WFA figures was 1 billion 810 million pounds, including both creamery and farm butter, about 9½ pounds per person after deductions for hotel, restaurant, and institutional use.

The government's 1945 cotton planting goal is 20,472,000 acres, the same as in 1944. Based on on average yields of the last few years, the crop should be about 12 million bales against 12,359,000 in 1944. Because of the large carryover, production will be more than ample for all requirements.

Wool production probably will be 10 per cent less than in 1944 because of the decrease in the sheep and lamb population. The 1945 estimate is less than one-half million pounds.

BETTER LIVING IS PROMISED BY WAR RESEARCH

Scientist Predicts Many Benefits.

BY ANTHONY WIRRY.

War time research in the chemical and medical laboratories and the factory drafting rooms has laid the groundwork for scientific and industrial advances which promise longer, healthier, more comfortable and more interesting lives, Dr. Gustav Egloff, research director of Universal Oil Products company, said yesterday.

Dr. Gustav Egloff.

His forecast was based on what has been done and what is likely to be done in improving health, food, housing, clothing, transportation, communications, rubber, plastics and glass.

Checks Insect Diseases.

Spread of diseases by insects will be checked thru the use of a new compound known as DDT, he said. It has been used effectively by the military forces in killing malarial mosquitos, typhus-carrying lice, and other insects, thus preventing many casualties. Walls sprayed with a mixture of the compound and kerosene are said to be fatal to flies which light on them for months afterward.

Besides the effective sulfa drugs and penicillin, a substance called gramacidin, obtained from soil bacteria, has proved effective in combatting pneumonia and streptococcus infections, he said. Two petroleum derivatives used as anesthetics are said to have less harmful after effects than ether or chloroform.

Other Advances Predicted.

Advances in home construction and clothes manufacturing will increase bodily comfort, he said. Homes will be thoroly air conditioned and insulated from heat, cold and noise, and will have built in light sources in the walls to produce soft luminous radiance which reduces eye strain, he added. Insulated and polished reflecting walls will prevent heat losses. He also predicted the use of electronic tubes that broil a steak in three seconds, bake a cake in two sec-

The achievements of American industry in production for war are amazing in their scope. The service of the Safety Engineers of Employers Mutual in the prevention of accidents which destroy manpower are contributing to this great industrial achievement.

CHICAGO STOCK TRADE DECLINES; DIVIDENDS GAIN

Trading volume on the Chicago Stock exchange decreased last year to 8,449,000 shares from the 9,527,000 share turnover of 1943, Harry M. Payne, chairman of the board of governors, reported yesterday. He said dividend payments in the year made by corporations listed on the exchange totaled $792,394,546, compared with $693,022,769 in 1943.

"About 20 new firms have been added to the membership of the exchange during the year," Payne said. "This represented an unusual expansion not only in the sphere of influence of exchange members, but in the broadening of participation in markets on the exchange itself. This expansion has taken place principally within the territory we seek to serve."

OPEN ACCOUNT BALANCES SHOW LARGE INCREASE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1 (AP). — Charge account indebtedness rose 148 million dollars in November, the federal reserve board reported today. It was the second successive more than seasonal increase.

The total of all charge account bills Nov. 30 was 1 million 664 million, or 198 million more than a year ago.

C. F. Marshall, Allied Mills Officer, to Take OPA Post

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1 (AP).—Clive F. Marshall, assistant to the president of Allied Mills, Chicago, has been appointed price executive of the OPA cereals, feeds, and agricultural chemicals branch, OPA said today. Marshall succeeds Colin S. Gordon, who will return to his position as vice president of the Quaker Oats company, Chicago.
